Fokkema, P.M. van den Berg, 2013-10-22 The seismic applications of the reciprocity theorem developed in this book are partly based on lecture notes and publications from Professor de Hoop Every student Professor de Hoop has taught knows the egg shaped figure affectionately known as de Hoop's egg that plays such an important role in his theoretical description of acoustic electromagnetic and elastodynamic wave phenomena On the one hand this figure represents the domain for the application of a reciprocity theorem in the analysis of a wavefield and on the other hand it symbolizes the power of a consistent wavefield

description of this theorem The roots of the reciprocity theorem lie in Green's theorem for Laplace's equation and Helmholtz's extension to the wave equation In 1894 J W Strutt who later became Lord Rayleigh introduced in his book The Theory of Sound this extension under the name of Helmholtz's theorem Nowadays it is known as Rayleigh's reciprocity theorem Progress in seismic data processing requires the knowledge of all the theoretical aspects of the acoustic wave theory The reciprocity theorem was chosen as the central theme of this book as it constitutes the fundamentals of the seismic wave theory In essence two states are distinguished in this theorem These can be completely different although sharing the same time invariant domain of application and they are related via an interaction quantity The particular choice of the two states determines the acoustic application in turn making it possible to formulate the seismic experiment in terms of a geological system response to a known source function In linear system theory it is well known that the response to a known input function can be written as an integral representation where the impulse response acts as a kernel and operates on the input function Due to the temporal invariance of the system this integral representation is of the convolution type In seismics the temporal behaviour of the system is dealt with in a similar fashion however the spatial interaction needs a different approach The reciprocity theorem handles this interaction by identifying one state with the spatial impulse function also known as the Green's function while the other state is connected with the actual source distribution In general the resulting integral representation is not a spatial convolution Moreover the systematic use of the reciprocity theorem leads to a hierarchical description of the seismic experiment in terms of increasing complexity Also from an educational point of view this approach provides a hierarchy and the student learns to break down the seismic problem into constituent partial solutions This book should contribute to the understanding that the reciprocity theorem is a powerful tool in the analysis of the seismic experiment

Temper Sands in Prehistoric Oceanian Pottery William R. Dickinson, 2006-01-01 Oceanian ceramic cultures making earthenware pottery spread during the past 3500 years through a dozen major island groups spanning 6000 km of the tropical Pacific Ocean from western Micronesia to western Polynesia Island potters mixed sand as temper into clay bodies during ceramic manufacture The nature of island sands is governed by the geotectonics of hotspot chains island arcs subduction zones backarc basins and remnant arcs as well as by sedimentology Because small islands with bedrock exposures of restricted character are virtual point sources of sand many tempers are diagnostic of specific islands Petrographic study of temper sands in thin section allows distinction between indigenous pottery and exotic pottery transported from elsewhere Study of 2223 prehistoric Oceanian potsherds from 130 islands and island clusters indicates the Sigatoka Y. M. Marshall,2000 The traditional view of the colonisation of Fiji is one of an initial movement to the islands three thousand years ago followed by relative isolation until the 19th century Therefore it is no surprise that these islands and their inhabitants have been widely studied as examples of cultures evolving in isolation However recent archaeological evidence and new theoretical models have questioned the degree of isolation experienced in the early years of the occupation of the islands One important site within this debate is the Sigatoka sand dunes on the south west shore of Fiji s largest island Here the archaeological evidence from this site is reassessed and presents a dynamic interactive picture of island life with constant contacts with other islands to the east and west The information from this site is not only placed within the broader context of this group of islands but also within other theoretical migrationist and evolutionary models of island groups
