

A group of people, likely from a traditional or indigenous culture, are shown from the chest up, looking upwards towards a starry night sky. The sky is filled with stars and a prominent band of the Milky Way galaxy. The people are wearing dark, textured clothing. The overall scene is dark and atmospheric, with the light from the stars illuminating the scene.

What was most striking about the long course of human events, Truman had concluded from his reading of history, were its elements of continuity, including, above all, human nature, which had changed little if at all through time. "The only new thing in the world is the history you don't know," he would one day tell an interviewer.
