When Prophecy Fails A Social and Psychological Study of a Modern Group That Predicted the Destruction of the World is a classic work of social psychology by Leon Festinger Henry Riecken and Stanley Schachter which studied a small UFO religion in Chicago called the Seekers that believed in an imminent apocalypse and its coping mechanisms after the event did not occur Festinger s theory of cognitive dissonance can account for the psychological consequences of disconfirmed expectations One of the first published cases of dissonance was reported in this book Festinger and his associates read a story in their local newspaper headlined Prophecy from planet Clarion call to city flee that flood The prophecy came from Dorothy Martin 1900 1992 a Chicago housewife who experimented with automatic writing In order to protect her privacy the study gave her the alias of Marian Keech and relocated her group to Michigan She had previously been involved with L Ron Hubbard s Dianetics movement and she incorporated ideas from what later became Scientology The group of believers headed by Keech had taken strong actions to indicate their degree of commitment to the belief They had left jobs college and spouses and had given away money and possessions to prepare for their departure on a flying saucer which was to rescue the group of true believers She claimed to have received a message from a fictional planet named Clarion These messages revealed that the world would end in a great flood before dawn on December 21 1954 After the failure of the prediction she left Chicago after being threatened with arrest and involuntary commitment She later founded the Association of Sananda and Sanat Kumara Under the name Sister Thedra she continued to practice channeling and to participate in contactee groups until her death in 1992 The Association is active to this day Festinger and his colleagues saw this as a case that would lead to the arousal of dissonance when the prophecy failed Altering the belief would be difficult as Keech and her group were committed at considerable expense to maintain it Another option would be to enlist social support for their belief As Festinger wrote If more and more people can be persuaded that the system of belief is correct then clearly it must after all be correct In this case if Keech could add consonant elements by converting others to the basic premise then the magnitude of her dissonance following disconfirmation would be reduced Festinger and his colleagues predicted that the inevitable disconfirmation would be followed by an enthusiastic effort at proselytizing to seek social support and lessen the pain of disconfirmation Festinger stated that five conditions must be present if someone is to become a more fervent believer after a failure or disconfirmation A belief must be held with deep conviction and it must have some relevance to action that is to what the believer does or how he or she behaves The person holding the belief must have committed himself to it that is for the sake of his belief he must have taken some important action that is difficult to undo In general the more important such actions are and the more difficult they are to undo the greater is the individual s commitment to the belief The belief must be sufficiently specific and sufficiently concerned with the real world so that events may unequivocally refute the belief. Such undeniable disconfirmatory evidence must occur and must be recognized by the individual holding the belief. The individual believer must have social support. It is unlikely that one isolated believer could withstand the kind of disconfirming evidence that has been specified. If however the believer is a member of a group of convinced persons who can support one another the belief may be maintained and the believers may attempt to proselytize or persuade nonmembers that the belief is correct.

When Prophecy Fails

Henry Riecken, Leon Festinger, 2025-01-10. When Prophecy Fails is a groundbreaking book by Leon Festinger, Henry Riecken, and Stanley Schachter that introduced the concept of cognitive dissonance into the study of human psychology. It chronicles a fascinating real life case study of a small religious group that predicted the end of the world and how its members reacted when the prophecy failed to materialize.

When Prophecy Fails Henry W. Riecken, Stanley Schachter, Leon

Festinger, 2017-09-27. When Prophecy Fails: A Social and Psychological Study of a Modern Group That Predicted the Destruction of the World is a classic work of social psychology by Leon Festinger, Henry Riecken, and Stanley Schachter which studied a small UFO religion in Chicago called the Seekers that believed in an imminent apocalypse and its coping mechanisms after the event did not occur. Festinger's theory of cognitive dissonance can account for the psychological consequences of disconfirmed expectations. One of the first published cases of dissonance was reported in this book. Festinger and his associates read a story in their local newspaper headlined "Prophecy from planet Clarion call to city flee that flood." The prophecy came from Dorothy Martin, 1900-1992, a Chicago housewife who experimented with automatic writing. In order to protect her privacy the study gave her the alias of Marian Keech and relocated her group to Michigan. She had previously been involved with L. Ron Hubbard's Dianetics movement and she incorporated ideas from what later became Scientology. The group of believers headed by Keech had taken strong actions to indicate their degree of commitment to the belief. They had left jobs, college, and spouses and had given away money and possessions to prepare for their departure on a flying saucer which was to rescue the group of true believers. She claimed to have received a message from a fictional planet named Clarion. These messages revealed that the world would end in a great flood before dawn on December 21, 1954. After the failure of the prediction she left Chicago after being threatened with arrest and involuntary commitment. She later founded the Association of Sananda and Sanat Kumara. Under the name Sister Thedra she continued to practice channeling and to participate in contactee groups until her death in 1992. The Association is active to this day. Festinger and his colleagues saw this as a case that would lead to the arousal of dissonance when the prophecy failed. Altering the belief would be difficult as Keech and her group were committed at considerable expense to maintain it. Another option would be to enlist social support for their belief. As Festinger wrote, "If more and more people can be persuaded that the system of belief is correct then clearly it must after all be correct." In this case if Keech could add consonant elements by converting others to the basic premise then the magnitude of her dissonance following disconfirmation would be reduced. Festinger and his colleagues predicted that the inevitable disconfirmation would be followed by an enthusiastic effort at proselytizing to seek social support and lessen the pain of disconfirmation Festinger stated that five conditions must be present if someone is to become a more fervent believer after a failure or disconfirmation A belief must be held with deep conviction and it must have some relevance to action that is to what the believer does or how he or she behaves The person holding the belief must have committed himself to it that is for the sake of his belief he must have taken some important action that is difficult to undo In general the more important such actions are and the more difficult they are to undo the greater is the individual's commitment to the belief The belief must be sufficiently specific and sufficiently concerned with the real world so that events may unequivocally refute the belief Such undeniable disconfirmatory evidence must occur and must be recognized by the individual holding the belief The individual believer must have social support It is unlikely that one isolated believer could withstand the kind of disconfirming evidence that has been specified If however the believer is a member of a group of convinced persons who can support one another the belief may be maintained and the believers may attempt to proselytize or persuade nonmembers that the belief is correct

When Prophecy Fails Leon Festinger, Henry W. Riecken, Stanley Schachter, 2008 In 1954 Leon Festinger a brilliant young experimental social psychologist in the process of outlining a new theory of human behavior the theory of cognitive dissonance and his colleagues infiltrated a cult who believed the end of the world was only months away How would these people feel when their prophecy remained unfulfilled Would they admit the error of their prediction or would they readjust their reality to make sense of the new circumstances

Expecting Armageddon Jon R. Stone, 2011 The expectation of an end to time and the yearning for a millennial paradise have been recurring themes in Western religious thought But when we speak of expectation of the world's end we are mindful of the fact that generation after generation of millenarians have been disappointed Their endtime hopes and prophecies have not come true What happens one might ask when prophecies fail Does failure spell the end of the very movements that embrace such expectations The aim of this anthology is to gather together in one volume the essential research from the fields of sociology and psychology and the Raelian UFO religion would seem to have little in common What these groups share however is a millennial orientation the audacious human hope for a collective salvation which may be either heavenly or earthly The Oxford Handbook of Millennialism offers readers an in depth look at both the theoretical underpinnings of the study of millennialism and its many manifestations across history and cultures

Hope and Heresy Leigh T.I. Penman,2019-06-12 Apocalyptic expectations played a key role in defining the horizons of life and expectation in early modern Europe Hope and Heresy investigates the problematic status of a particular kind of apocalyptic expectation that of a future felicity on earth before the Last Judgement within Lutheran confessional culture between approximately 1570 and 1630 Among Lutherans expectations of a future felicity were often considered manifestations of a heresy called chiliasm because they contravened the pessimistic apocalyptic outlook at the core of confessional identity However during the late sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries individuals raised within Lutheran confessional culture mathematicians metallurgists historians astronomers politicians and even theologians began to entertain and publicise hopes of a future earthly felicity Their hopes were countered by accusations of heresy The ensuing contestation of acceptable doctrine became a flashpoint for debate about the boundaries of confessional identity itself Based on a thorough study of largely neglected or overlooked print and manuscript sources the present study examines these debates within their intellectual social cultural and theological contexts It outlines for the first time a heretofore overlooked debate about the limits and possibilities of eschatological thought in early modernity and provides readers with a unique look at a formative time in the apocalyptic imagination of European culture

John the Baptist Catherine M. Murphy,2003 Examines how and why the authors of the first three Gospels shaped the story of John the Baptist around the story of Jesus Careful comparison of these foundational texts yields not only the perspectives of the Synoptic authors but also a provisional sketch of the historical figure of the Baptist which is then placed within the religious political and economic context of first century C E Judea Special attention is given to the interface between John and the Qumran community that scholars have proposed ever since the Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered

When Prophecy Fails Henry Riecken, Stanley Schachter, Leon Festinger, 2018-05-25 When Prophecy Fails 1956 is a classic text in social psychology authored by Leon Festinger Henry Riecken and Stanley Schachter It chronicles the experience of a UFO cult that believed the end of the world was at hand In effect it is a social and psychological study of a modern group that predicted the destruction of the world and the adjustments made when the prediction failed to materialize The authors have done something as laudable as it is unusual for social psychologists They espied a fleeting social movement important to a line of research they were interested in and took after it They recruited a team of observers joined the movement and watched it from within under great difficulties until its crisis came and went Their report is of interest as much for the method as for the substance Everett C Hughes The American Journal of Sociology
