Tin House Win McCormack, 2015 From the website Imagination is more important than knowledge Einstein once said His desire to open doors to chart the world dissect it understand it and make order out of chaos echoes the experience of creation found in writing Writers too work in solitude inside their heads solving problems and stitching together worlds They calculate the geometry of human relationships the velocity of a falling expectation the force of a breaking heart And yet despite similarities scientists and writers often find themselves grappling not only with the world but also with one another Given the overlap of literary and scientific worlds we at Tin House asked ourselves why are they at odds And could we as a literary magazine do anything to clear the air Writers from both camps excitedly took up our challenge and we think succeeded in bridging the supposed divide Andrea Barrett who has been twining fiction and science for more than twenty years braids the narrative of one man's single minded pursuit of genetic coding during the onset of World War II Synesthesia the curious condition of overlapping senses that causes people to hear colors or see tastes seems like the stuff of fiction but Rachel Riederer's investigation proves it is in fact a very real and very odd medical condition And the poets wrote about everything from nanobots to body doubles As with writing and science the act of reading at bottom is about exploration looking at the world through a new lens be it a microscope or a point of view and being open to discovery So join us Turn the page and unlock something inside you Tin House: Weird Science Win McCormack, 2012-03-20 Tin House is an award winning literary magazine that publishes new writers as well as more established voices essays as well as fiction poetry and interviews Tin House Special 50th Issue: Beauty Win McCormack, Rob Spillman, Lee Montgomery, Holly MacArthur, 2011-12-13 Tin House is a beautifully designed periodical that features the best writers of our time alongside a new generation of talent poised to become the most important voices of the future For the special 50th issue Tin House has some fun with the idea of beauty providing personal takes on what is beautiful The issue showcases fiction poetry and nonfiction that confront the notions of beauty across cultures economic strata genders and races What is beauty What is art Think of Francis Bacon There is no excellent beauty that hath not some strangeness in the proportion This new issue also includes pieces that look into the marketing of beauty and how notions of beauty are used to create celebrity and at the same time to marginalize and exclude Content includes unique departments such as Lost and Found in which writers review overlooked or underrated books and Blithe Spirits and Readable Feast which present tales and recipes for drinks and food in a literary way Tin House Win McCormack, 2011 From the website The soul should always stand ajar ready to welcome the ecstatic experience Emily Dickinson wrote Not a shocking sentiment coming from a hermetic poet However in this modern age the notion of leaving the soul ajar seems nearly impossible Yet as you'll find in this issue the human desire for ecstasy of all sorts is hardwired into our brains For some like Kelly Link transcendence is found in the fantastic It is classical music that delivers the hero in the excerpt from Nikolai Grozni's novel Wunderkind whereas poet Kevin Young locates the soul in the heart of soul music Kung fu is the path for a chosen few in Oliver Broudy s profile of a master and his students Elissa Schappell discovered the ecstatic when she began having temporal lobe seizures And while Fran ois Villon is delirious over dancing and women modern poets like Meghan O Rourke Matthew Zapruder and Alex Dimitrov tackle on wine sex and religion So open the Ecstatic issue open your mind and remain open Report Commonwealth Shipping Committee,1915 Tin House ,2007 Annual Report Ohio.
