Sumerian Mythology: A Study of Spiritual and Literary Achievement in the Third Millennium B.C. Samuel Noah Kramer,1944-01-01 The Sumerians were a non Semitic non Indo European people who flourished in southern Babylonia from the beginning of the fourth to the end of the third millennium B C During this long stretch of time the Sumerians whose racial and linguistic affiliations are still unclassifiable represented the dominant cultural group of the entire Near East This cultural dominance manifested itself in three directions It was the Sumerians who developed and probably invented the cuneiform system of writing which was adopted by nearly all the peoples of the Near East and without which the cultural progress of western Asia would have been largely impossible The Sumerians developed religious and spiritual concepts together with a remarkably well integrated pantheon which influenced profoundly all the peoples of the Near East including the Hebrews and the Greeks Moreover by way of Judaism Christianity and Mohammedanism not a few of these spiritual and religious concepts have permeated the modern civilized world The Sumerians produced a vast and highly developed literature largely poetic in character consisting of epics and myths hymns and lamentations proverbs and words of wisdom These compositions are inscribed in cuneiform script on clay tablets which date largely from approximately 1750 B C a In the course of the past hundred years approximately five b thousand such literary pieces have been excavated in the mounds of ancient Sumer Of this number over two thousand more than two thirds of our source material were excavated by the University of Pennsylvania in the mound covering ancient Nippur in the course of four grueling campaigns lasting from 1889 to 1900 these Nippur tablets and fragments represent therefore the major source for the reconstruction of the Sumerian compositions As literary products these Sumerian compositions rank high among the creations of civilized man They compare not unfavorably with the ancient Greek and Hebrew masterpieces and like them mirror the spiritual and intellectual life of an otherwise little known civilization Their significance for a proper appraisal of the cultural and spiritual development of the Near East can hardly be overestimated The Assyrians and Babylonians took them over almost in toto The Hittites translated them into their own language and no doubt imitated them widely The form and contents of the Hebrew literary creations and to a certain extent even those of the ancient Greeks were profoundly influenced by them As practically the oldest written literature of any significant amount ever uncovered it furnishes new rich and unexpected source material to the archaeologist and anthropologist to the ethnologist and student of folklore to the students of the history of religion and of the history of literature
