Great was our joy, Ronald Hughes Wright's and mine,
To travel by the Underground all day
Between the rush hours, so that very soon
There was no station, north to Finsbury Park,
To Barking eastwards, Clapham Common south,
No temporary platform in the west
Among the Actons and the Ealings, where
We had not once alighted.

Summoned By Bells Poems:

The Illustrated Summoned by Bells Sir John Betjeman, 1993-07-15 John Betjeman's verse autobiography has sold more copies than any other English poem of its length this century. The touching story of a boy's growth to early manhood and the mixed joys and guilt of youth it is also supremely a poem about places, buildings and surroundings: Highgate and Pooterland, the Cornish seaside and Chelsea, Marlborough among its Downs, the quads of Oxford, parish churches and tin advertisements on railway platforms. Who better to illustrate this autobiography than Hugh Casson, architect and former President of the Royal Academy, who has already delighted us with illustrated books on London, Cambridge and Oxford which show him to be as much in love with those places as Betjeman himself. Casson is Betjeman's very near contemporary and was a close friend, matching him in passion for all matters architectural and like him a keen observer of the splendid and ridiculous. He has delighted in Summoned by Bells since it first appeared and his illustrations in line and water colour are a perfect complement to the verse. Summoned by Bells John Betjeman, 1960. Autobiography in verse. Summoned by Bells Sir John Betjeman, 2000. John Betjeman William S. Peterson, 2006. Sir John Betjeman 1906-1984. Poet Laureate was probably the most widely read English poet of the twentieth century. Because of his frequent appearances on radio and television and his fervent devotion to the preservation of England's architectural heritage, his face and voice became familiar to millions. Few other poets of any century have had such a powerful influence on their contemporaries. This bibliography lists and describes all of his known writings, including his own books, ephemera, contributions to periodicals and to books by others, lectures and radio and television programmes. Other categories such as editorships, music settings and dramatic adaptations of his poems, recordings and interviews are also included, as well as a section devoted to writings about him. Manuscripts and drafts of all his works are described in detail. This enormous body of material is thoroughly indexed, cross-referenced and in most cases annotated. Now at last the activities of this remarkable man, both a poet and a cultural phenomenon, can be seen in their full breadth and complexity. More than fifty specialists have contributed to this new edition of volume 4 of The Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature. The design of the original work has established itself so firmly as a workable solution to the immense problems of analysis, articulation and coordination that it has been retained in all its essentials for the new edition. The task of the new contributors has been to revise and integrate the lists of 1940 and 1957, to add materials of the following decade, to correct and refine the bibliographical details already available and to re-shape the whole according to a new series of conventions devised to give greater clarity and
