Sumptuous Memories:

Sumptuous Memories Frits Scholten, 2003 Although the conditions for a flourishing art of sculpture in the Netherlands received a serious setback after the Iconoclasm and the Reformation around 100 sculpted sepulchral monuments were nevertheless erected in the 17th century ranging from simple memorials to completely free standing tombs Behind these remarkable works of art lies a world of prominent patrons and first class sculptors of major financial investments and costly materials of status and personal sorrow The patronage of this funerary sculpture is the thread running through this book the first detailed study of 17th century Dutch sculpture for more than 50 years Who ordered these monuments and why Who were the artists involved and how did they organise their work What were the functions and meanings of this sepulchral sculpture What were the costs involved in erecting the tombs and how were they viewed by the 17th century public These and other questions are examined from various different angles BOOK JACKET The Monument's End Marisa Anne Bass, 2024-10-15 An examination of monument making in the Dutch Republic during the early modern period during which this form first manifested and flourished Justifying Transgression Gijs Kruijtzter, 2023-11-20 How do people justify what others see as transgression Taking that question to the Persian Muslim and Latin Christian worlds over the period 1200 to 1700 this book shows that people in both these worlds invested considerable energy in worrying debating and writing about proscribed practices It compares how people in the two worlds came to terms with the proscriptions of sodomy idolatry and usury When historians speak of the gap between premodern practice and the legal theory of the time they tend to ignore the myriad of justifications that filled this gap Moreover a focus on justification evens out many of the contrasts that have been alleged to exist between the two worlds or the Muslim and Christian worlds more generally The similarities outweigh the differences in the ways people came to terms with the various rules of divine law The level of flexibility of the theologians and jurists in charge of divine law varied more over time and by topic than between the two worlds Both worlds also saw the development of ever more sophisticated justifications Amid the increasing complexity of justifications a particular kind of reasoning emerged that good outcomes are more important than upholding rules for their own sake The Wake of Iconoclasm Angela Vanhaelen, 2012 Explores the relationship between art and religion after the iconoclasm of the Dutch Reformation Reassesses Dutch realism and its pictorial strategies in relation to the religious and political diversity of the Dutch cities Provided by publisher The Ashgate Research Companion to Dutch Art of the Seventeenth Century Wayne Franits, 2017-07-05 Despite the tremendous number of studies produced annually in the field of Dutch art over the last 30 years or so and the strong contemporary market for works by Dutch masters of the period as well as the public's ongoing fascination with some of its most beloved painters until now there has been no comprehensive study assessing the state of research in the field As the first study of its kind this book is a useful resource for scholars and advanced students of seventeenth century Dutch art and also serves as a springboard for further research Its 19 chapters divided into three sections and written by a team of internationally renowned art historians address a wide variety of topics ranging from those that might be considered traditional to others that have only drawn scholarly attention comparatively recently

The Glimpses of the Moon Edith Wharton,1922

The Moving Statues of Seventeenth-Century Amsterdam Angela Vanhaelen,2022-03-08 This book opens a window onto a fascinating and understudied aspect of the visual material intellectual and cultural history of seventeenth century Amsterdam the role played by its inns and taverns specifically the doolhoven Doolhoven were a type of labyrinth unique to early modern Amsterdam Offering guest lodgings these licensed public houses also housed remarkable displays of artwork in their gardens and galleries The main attractions were inventive displays of moving mechanical figures automata and a famed set of waxwork portraits of the rulers of Protestant Europe Publicized as the most innovative artworks on display in Amsterdam the doolhoven exhibits presented the mercantile city as a global center of artistic and technological advancement This evocative tour through the doolhoven pub gardens where drinking entertainment and the acquisition of knowledge mingled in encounters with lively displays of animated artifacts shows that the exhibits had a forceful and transformative impact on visitors one that moved them toward Protestant reform Deeply researched and decidedly original

The Moving Statues of Seventeenth Century Amsterdam uncovers a wealth of information about these nearly forgotten public pleasure parks situating them within popular culture religious controversies global trade relations and intellectual debates of the seventeenth century It will appeal in particular to scholars in art history and early modern studies
