Sunbelt Working Mothers:

Sunbelt Working Mothers Louise Lamphere, Patricia Zavella, Felipe Gonzales, 1993 Examines the intersection between class gender and ethnicity among direct production workers in Albuquerque Provides an alternative perspective that stresses differences of experience among women belonging to distinct ethnic groups and socio economic strata P 4 of cover

Sunbelt Working Mothers Louise Lamphere, Patricia Zavella, Felipe Gonzales, 2018-07-05 The recession of the 1980s triggered important economic and cultural changes in the United States and working women were at the center of these changes Sunbelt Working Mothers compares the experiences of Mexican American and white mothers employed in apparel and electronics factories in Albuquerque and illuminates the ways in which individual women manage the competing demands of two roles Authors Lamphere Zavella Gonzales and Evans show how these mothers without the economic resources of highly paid professional women find day care divide economic contributions and household responsibilities with spouses or roommates and obtain emotional support from kin or friends After an overview of the recent industrialization of the Sunbelt economy the authors consider how new participative management techniques have given greater flexibility to some women s work lives Drawing on interviews with married couples and single mothers they offer an engaging account of representative women s home lives and conclude that working families are changing This timely book will be welcomed by students and scholars in the fields of anthropology sociology labor studies women s studies and social history

Weaving Work and Motherhood Anita Ilta Garey, 1999 In American culture the image of balancing work and family life is often represented in the glossy shot of the executive track woman balancing cell phone laptop and baby In Weaving Work and Motherhood Anita Ilta Garey focuses not on the corporate executives so frequently represented in American ads and magazines but rather on the women in jobs that typify the vast majority of women s employment in the United States A sociologist and work and family expert Garey situates her research in the health service industry Interviewing a racially and ethnically diverse group of women hospital workers clerical workers janitorial workers nurses and nurse s aids Garey analyzes what it means to be at once a mother who is employed and a worker with children Within the limits of the resources available to them women integrate their identities as workers and their identities as mothers by valuing their relation to work while simultaneously preserving cultural norms about what it means to be a good mother Some of these women work non day shifts in order to have the right blocks of time at home including for example a registered nurse who explains how working the night shift enables her to see her children off to school greet them when they return and attend school events in the way she feels good mothers should even if she finds little time for sleep Moving beyond studies of women work and family in terms of structural incompatibilities Garey challenges images of the exclusively work oriented or exclusively family oriented mother As women talk about their lives Garey focuses on the meanings of motherhood and of work that underlie their strategies for integrating employment and motherhood She replaces notions of how women balance work and family with a better understanding of how women integrate negotiate and weave together their identities as both workers and mothers participation of these women as witnesses in the criminal justice process. It points to the roles of gender, economic power, legal status, and the organizational structure of the criminal justice system in shaping the experiences of women charged with domestic violence. The limitations of the criminal justice system are exposed when it fails to provide abused women with long-term protection, forcing women to choose between personal safety and family life and allowing domestic violence laws to reinforce male domination. This work is among the few that highlights the need for more research into how the United States criminal justice system's policies affect abused Vietnamese immigrant women's safety and family lives. It incorporates interviews from women living in various communities in the United States. Professionals, victim advocates, social scientists, and students in criminal justice, justice studies, women's studies, and social work programs will all benefit from this insightful book.

Changing Fatherhood Mirjam van Dongen, G. A. B. Frinking, Menno Jacobs, 1995. The role of the father is a frequent topic of discussion. Demographical, social, psychological, judicial, and biomedical developments have contributed to changes in the conceptions of fatherhood and in fatherhood itself. These changes are taking place in a Feminist Studies, 1993.

Gender at Work in Economic Life Gracia Clark, 2003. This new volume from SEA illuminates the importance of gender as a frame of reference in the study of economic life. The contributors are economic anthropologists who consider the role of gender and work in a cross-cultural context, examining issues of historical change, the construction of globalization, household authority and entitlement, and entrepreneurship and autonomy. The book will be a valuable resource for researchers in anthropology and in the related fields of economics, sociology of work, gender studies, women's studies, and economic development. Karla Anne Erickson, 2004. Brave New Families Judith Stacey, 1991-10-09. Probes the shattering impact of the feminist and postindustrial revolutions on the American working-class family: an account of how economic insecurity and the sexual revolution are creating recombinant families no longer defined by blood ties and traditional gender roles. Contemporary Ethnic Families in the United States Nijole Vaicaitis Benokraitis, 2002. Designed to increase readers' awareness of healthful family processes across and within ethnic households, this book features 45 accessible, non-technical articles on 9 substantive family-related issues. Organized by topics rather than ethnic groups, it features selections that examine the intersections of social class, age, sexual orientation, gender differences, and intragroup variations. It provides selections that are representative of the increasing heterogeneity and diversity of contemporary ethnic families in the U.S. Features representative articles on five ethnic groups: African Americans including African and Caribbean families; Latinos including Cuban Americans, Mexican Americans, and Puerto Rican Americans; Asian Americans including Korean Americans, Japanese Americans, Chinese Americans, Filipino Americans, Pacific Islanders; Vietnamese Americans; Cambodian Americans; Indian Americans; and Laotian Americans; American Indians; and Middle Eastern Americans including Arab Americans and Muslim families. Explores the ethnic families' characteristics, variations, and dynamics in terms of socialization, gender roles, marriage, and communication.
