Reconstructing Violence Deborah E. Barker,2015-11-11 In this bold study of cinematic depictions of violence in the south Deborah E Barker explores the ongoing legacy of the southern rape complex in American film Taking as her starting point D W Griffith s infamous Birth of a Nation Barker demonstrates how the tropes and imagery of the southern rape complex continue to assert themselves across a multitude of genres time periods and stylistic modes Drawing from Gilles Deleuze s work on cinema Barker examines plot dialogue and camera technique as she considers several films The Story of Temple Drake 1933 Sanctuary 1958 Touch of Evil 1958 To Kill a Mockingbird 1962 and Cape Fear 1962 Placing this body of analysis in the context of the historical periods when these films appeared and the literary sources on which they are based Barker reveals the protean power of cinematic racialized violence amid the shifting cultural and political landscapes of the South and the nation as a whole By focusing on familiar literary and cinematic texts each produced or set during moments of national crisis such as the Great Depression or the civil rights movement Barker s Reconstructing Violence offers fresh insights into the anxiety that has underpinned sexual and racial violence in cinematic representations of the South

Faulkner and Whiteness Jay Watson, 2011-05-11 William Faulkner wrote during a tumultuous period in southern racial consciousness between the years of the enactment of Jim Crow and the beginnings of the civil rights movement in the South. Throughout the writer's career, racial paradigms were in flux, and these shifting notions are reflected in Faulkner's prose. Faulkner's fiction contains frequent questions about the ways in which white Americans view themselves with regard to race, along with challenges to the racial codes and standards of the region and complex portrayals of the interactions between blacks and whites. Throughout his work, Faulkner contests white identity, its performance by whites, and those passing for white, its role in shaping the South, and its assumption of normative identity in opposition to non-white Others. This is true even in novels without a strong visible African American presence, such as As I Lay Dying, The Hamlet, The Town, and The Mansion. Faulkner and Whiteness explores the ways in which Faulkner's fiction addresses and destabilizes the concept of whiteness in American culture. Collectively, the essays argue that whiteness, as part of the Nobel Laureate's consistent querying of racial dynamics, is a central element. This anthology places Faulkner's oeuvre and scholarly views of it in the contexts of its contemporary literature and academic trends exploring race and texts.
