Zen Mover:

Moving Consciously Sondra Fraleigh, 2015-07-30 The popularity of yoga and Zen meditation has heightened awareness of somatic practices. Individuals develop the conscious embodiment central to somatics work via movement and dance or through touch from a skilled teacher or therapist often called a somatic bodyworker. Methods of touch and movement foster generative processes of consciousness in order to create a fluid interconnection between sensation, thought, movement, and expression. In Moving Consciously, Sondra Fraleigh gathers essays that probe ideas surrounding embodied knowledge and the conscious embodiment of movement and dance. Using a variety of perspectives on movement and dance, somatics, Fraleigh and other contributors draw on scholarship and personal practice to participate in a multifaceted investigation of a thriving worldwide phenomenon. Their goal is to present the mental and physical health benefits of experiencing one's inner world through sensory awareness and movement integration. A stimulating addition to a burgeoning field, Moving Consciously incorporates concepts from East and West into a timely look at life-changing intertwined practices that involve dance, movement, performance, studies, and education. Contributors: Richard Biehl, Robert Bingham, Hillel Braude, Alison East, Sondra Fraleigh, Kelly Ferris, Lester Karin, Rugman, Catherine Schaeffer, Jeanne Schul, and Ruth Way. Think Eat Move Thrive James Rouse, Debra Rouse, 2016-09-20 Forget the fad diets; this program integrates mindfulness, eating with intention, and interval-based movement to help you live an inspired, healthier, and longer life. classes at two Buddhist centers in Toronto Canada The centers Friends of the Heart and Chandrakirti are led and attended by Western sometimes called convert Buddhists that is people from non Buddhist familial and cultural backgrounds Inspired by theories that suggest that rituals impart new knowledge or understanding Patricia Campbell examines how introductory meditation students learn through formal Buddhist practice Along the way she also explores practitioners reasons for enrolling in meditation classes their interests in Buddhism and their responses to formal Buddhist practices and to ritual in general Based on ethnographic interviews and participant observation fieldwork the text follows interview participants reflections on what they learned in meditation classes and through personal practice and what roles meditation and other ritual practices played in that learning Participants learning experiences are illuminated by an influential learning theory called Bloom s Taxonomy while the rites and practices taught and performed at the centers are explored using performance theory a method which focuses on the performative elements of ritual s postures and gestures But the study expands the performance framework as well by demonstrating that performative ritualizing includes the concentration techniques that take place in a meditator s mind Such techniques are received as traditional mental acts or behaviors that are standardized repetitively performed and variously regarded as special elevated spiritual or religious Having established a link between mental and physical forms of ritualizing the study then demonstrates that the repetitive mental techniques of meditation practice train the mind to develop new skills in the same way that physical postures and gestures train the body The mind is thus experienced as both embodied and gestural and the whole of the body as socially and ritually informed
