emphasis in research on waterfowl has traditionally focused on breeding as opposed to migrant or wintering birds. Scientists have long been interested in courtship, nest sites, laying and brood rearing, and they have also been concerned about losses of eggs, young, nesting hens, and breeding habitats, especially as they have affected the goal of increasing populations. But lately there has been an upsurge of interest and research on the migratory and wintering phases, and this volume offers ample evidence of the knowledge gained. The authors, 105 waterfowl biologists, have contributed 47 chapters that range geographically from Alaska to northern South America and from the Pacific Northwest to Nova Scotia and Florida. Their subjects include distributional changes due to human influence, population trends and concerns over less common species, pairing and other behavior that occurs in the wintering areas and is vital to the success of the species, feeding ecology and body condition during winter, new habitats created by such activities as aquaculture and park development, losses of habitat due to development and drainage for alternate uses, lead poisoning and pollutants that are detrimental to waterfowl habitat, management for maintenance of successful populations now and in the future. Also presented are reports of workshop discussions outlining current issues and future research needs. Preparation of this volume was assisted by an editorial board comprising Bruce J. Batt, Robert H. Chabreck, Leigh H. Fredrickson, and Dennis G. Raveling. The Day of rest, 1881

Making It Like a Man: Canadian Masculinities in Practice is a collection of essays on the practice of masculinities in Canadian arts and cultures where to make it like a man is to participate in the cultural, sociological, and historical fluidity of ways of being a man in Canada from the country's origins in nineteenth-century Victorian values to its immersion in the contemporary post-modern landscape. The book focuses on the ways Canadian masculinities have been performed and represented through five broad themes: colonialism, nationalism, and transnationalism; emotion and affect; ethnic and minority identities; capitalist and domestic politics; and the question of men's relationships with themselves and others. Chapters include studies of well-known and more obscure figures in the Canadian arts and culture scenes such as visual artist Attila Richard Lukacs, writers Douglas Coupland, Barbara Gowdy, Simon Chaput, Thomas King, and James De Mille, filmmakers Clement Virgo, Norma Bailey, John N. Smith, and Frank Cole, as well as familiar and not-so-familiar tokens of Canadian masculinity such as the hockey hero, the gangsta rapper, the immigrant farmer, and the drag king. Making It Like a Man is the first book of its kind to explore and critique historical and contemporary masculinities in Canada with a special focus on artistic and cultural production and representation. It is concerned with mapping some of the uniquely Canadian places and spaces in the international field of masculinity studies and will be of interest to academic and culturally informed audiences.
