

The background is a stylized illustration of a room. A large, patterned rug with a repeating floral or star-like motif in shades of red, blue, and green covers the floor. In the center of the rug, the words "WILD GEESE CALLING" are written in a bold, yellow, sans-serif font with a black outline. Above the text, a single yellow bird is shown in flight, wings spread. The room's walls are a light tan color, and there are four windows, each with a white frame and a yellow flower-like decoration at the base. The overall style is reminiscent of mid-20th-century children's book illustrations.

Passions for Birds reveals how emotional subjective and material attachments to wild birds were forged through a period of pronounced social and cultural change Nixon demonstrates how for all their differences new traditions in birdwatching and conservation field sports and bird harvesting mobilized remarkably similar feelings towards birds Striking similarities also emerged in the material forms that each of these practices used to bring birds closer to people hides and traps nets and ropes and binoculars Wide ranging in scope Passions for Birds sheds new light on the ways in which wild birds helped shape humans throughout the twentieth century as well as how birds themselves became burdened with multiple cultural meanings and social anxieties over time
