ourselves The Once and Future World began in the moment J B MacKinnon realized the grassland he grew up on was not the pristine wilderness he had always believed it to be Instead his home prairie was the outcome of a long history of transformation from the disappearance of the grizzly bear to the introduction of cattle What remains today is an illusion of the wild an illusion that has in many ways created our world In three beautifully drawn parts MacKinnon revisits a globe exuberant with life where lions roam North America and 20 times more whales swim in the sea He traces how humans destroyed that reality out of rapaciousness yes but also through a great forgetting Finally he calls for an age of restoration not only to revisit that richer and more awe filled world but to reconnect with our truest human nature MacKinnon never fails to remind us that nature is a menagerie of marvels Here are fish that pass down the wisdom of elders landscapes still shaped by ecological ghosts a tortoise that is slowly remaking prehistory It remains a beautiful world MacKinnon writes and it is its beauty not its emptiness that should inspire us to seek more nature in our lives Journal of Forestry ,1917 List of members of the society in v 15 Quarterly Journal of Forestry ,2004 Vol 1 includes the Transactions of the Irish Forestry Society
