Sugimoto Portraits:

Hiroshi Sugimoto: Portraits Hiroshi Sugimoto, 2018-03-27 At first glance Hiroshi Sugimoto's photographic portrait of King Henry VIII of England is arresting his camera has captured the tactility of Henry's luxurious furs and silks the elaborate embroidery of his doublet and the light reflecting off of each shimmering jewel The contours of the king's face are so lifelike that he appears to be almost three dimensional It seems as though the twenty first century artist has traveled back in time nearly five hundred years to photograph his royal subject While Sugimoto's portraits of historical figures appear to capture a lived moment in time they are fictions These portraits are in fact at least twice removed from the subject his photograph captures a wax figure that has been created by a sculptor from either a photographic portrait or a painted one Sugimoto has photographed his portraits of historical subjects in black and white with each sitter posed against a black background giving the images an austere formality The black backdrop free of any props or additional visual information amplifies the illusion that we are viewing a contemporary portrait in which the subject has stepped out of history Other portraits appear to be photojournalistic Sugimoto's image of the Duke of Wellington at Napoleon's deathbed is actually a photograph of the mise en scene created by the wax museum but it registers as real in our minds The portraits of wax figures which in this volume are presented alongside a handful of portraits of living subjects and photographs of memento mori call into question what it is the portrait captures As with his other major bodies of work Dioramas Seascapes Theaters Sugimoto's Portraits address the passage of time and history We recognize these historical figures because of the many contemporaneous drawings paintings sculptures and photographs that have recorded them We take it for granted that a photograph of a living subject is true but what does that mean Are Sugimoto's portraits of living subjects more true than the historical portraits of wax figures Is Hans Holbein's painted portrait of Henry VIII truer than Sugimoto's photograph of the wax figure made from Holbein's painting

palette of tonal wealth in blacks grays and whites Many of these images have now become a part of art culture s popular image bank as U2 s use of Sugimoto s Boden Sea for the cover of their 2009 album No Line on the Horizon demonstrated while simultaneously evoking photography s earliest days I probably call myself a postmodern experienced pre postmodern modernist he once joked to an interviewer This absolutely exquisite retrospective is an expanded edition of Hatje Cantz s 2005 volume It is the first to feature works from all of Sugimoto s series to date his celebrated portraits of wax figures his incredible seascapes that seem to suggest a person s first conscious view of the ocean the extremely long exposures of theaters which elevate the white luminescent cinema screen and transform it into a magical image of an altar and the fascinating dioramas of scientific display cases which invite us to travel far into the past Additions to the original edition are two new groups of works Lightning Fields 2006 and Photogenic Drawings 2007 Hiroshi Sugimoto was born and raised in Tokyo Japan where he studied politics and sociology at St Paul s University later retraining as an artist at the Art Center College of Art and Design in Los Angeles CA He currently lives in New York City

Hiroshi Sugimoto: Enoura Observatory Hiroshi Sugimoto, 2025-10 Artist Hiroshi Sugimoto is renowned for the conceptual rigor and flawless technical execution of his work exemplified in photographic series such as Seascapes and Theaters Along with photography Sugimoto has made sculpture and architecture for more than twenty years Since the early 2010s he has been constructing the Enoura Observatory and with his singular vision he has brought together ancient and contemporary Japanese traditions in one seemingly timeless art and architectural complex Enoura Observatory Land of Distant Memories provides an account of this stunning multidisciplinary project The Observatory home to the artist s Odawara Art Foundation is sited on a hilly area covered with citrus trees in Odawara nestled against the outer rim of the Hakone Mountains and overlooking Sagami Bay Sugimoto envisions it as a forum for disseminating art and culture both within Japan and to the rest of the world The complex comprises a hundred meter long gallery space a Noh theater stage a re creation of a sixteenth century tea ceremony room a restored Muromachi Period Meigetsu Gate a strolling garden and the Winter Solstice Light Worship Tunnel which juts out over the hills and offers a breathtaking view of the Sagami Bay Odawara is home to groups of artisans with mastery of sophisticated techniques that have been handed down for centuries Sugimoto has constructed the Enoura Observatory using these techniques which are growing increasingly difficult to preserve The artist says of this project In a sprawling mikan citrus grove I established the Enoura Observatory with the aim of conveying to a wide audience the unique essence of Japanese culture a continuous legacy dating back to the prehistoric Jomon period which is the art of living in harmony with nature In today s grim world of rampant materialism and consumerism when so much natural splendor has been destroyed it is the revival of these ancient Japanese traditions that we need most The beautiful photographs in Enoura Observatory Land of Distant Memories show the site in all four seasons and at different times of day revealing Sugimoto s poetic vision for this total work of art that is the culmination of his art practice ARTnews ,1958 The Eye Club Jeffrey Fraenkel,2003 The Eye Club unofficially founded around 1975 was the nickname given to the loose conglomeration of pioneering individuals who found themselves among the first new collectors of photography Operating purely on instinct and the love of seeing these few dozen people including Sam Wagstaff Andre Jammes and other now legendary collectors shared a distaste for established pantheons and veered instead toward the lesser known the anonymous the outr or any photograph emanating sparks of electricity Photography was their perfect vehicle and they were startled to find themselves in so much uncharted territory The little known images in THE EYE CLUB have been assembled in a related spirit of adventure An elastic web of connections replaces chronological order Many of the pictures but by no means all are by artists who have been central to the gallery s history but when images by well known photographers appear they are rarely among their creator s most celebrated works The identity of several of the picture makers remains unknown or virtually so Photography persists as an unruly medium and this book and exhibition are comprised of an unruly group of photographs brought together in the open eyed spirit of The Eye Club to mark the gallery s twenty fifth year <http://fraenkelgallery.com> Flash Art ,2008 Art and Celebrity John A. Walker,2003 A lively and accessible study of what happens when the serious world of art collides with celebrity Interior Design ,2001-07
