

Suicide Art

Steven Stack, David Lester

Suicide Art:

Art of Suicide Ron Brown, 2001 This is a history of the representation of suicide from the ancient world to the 20th century After looking at instances of death in ancient Greece the author discusses the contrast between the absence of such figures in early Christianity and images of biblical suicides in the medieval era Suicide and the Creative Arts Steven Stack, David Lester, 2009 Artistic work itself has been thought of as a life saving behaviour for some suicidal artists Artistic depictions of suicide can also have a contagion effect causing suicides among members of the real world audience Guidelines are still needed for institutions such as the motion picture industry for minimising possible copycat effects of suicides in feature films and other artistic displays of suicide Perhaps one of the most important reasons for studying suicide art is for insights into the motives for suicide Artists portrayed many motives for suicide long before the rise of the science of suicidology in the 20th Century Motives including social factors such as death of a loved one honour economic strain and betrayal in love have roots in many historical artistic products Sophocles's plays dating from 2 500 years ago contain several motives that are still found today The history of suicide in art especially if film is included may be subject to continuities as well as changes in the motives for suicide While the visual arts may have drifted away from certain causes of suicide such as heroicism these causes may actually live on in other art forms including film and opera The present volume stresses a holistic approach to the study of suicide in art Patterns in one art venue may be both similar and different to those in other venues Hence caution needs to be exercised in making generalisations on the basis of one or a few modalities of artistic creations

Suicide Art Scott Edelman, 1992 Suicide Art is what the term implies intensely personal experience offered for public examination In these two highly provocative uncompromising stores Scott Edelman reminds us that horror fiction is suicide art a collaborative act that inevitably implicates both the artist and his audience P 4 of cover Revisiting Suicide Kanchan Bharati, Lancy Lobo, Jayesh Shah, 2020-11-19 This book provides a socio psychological enquiry of the phenomenon of suicide in the Indian context It addresses the rising trend of suicides across the world and through case studies explores its primary reasons the after effects on survivors and families and measures to prevent them The volume focuses on deciphering the social and psychological meanings associated with suicide Through an examination of psycho social autopsies of numerous cases it highlights the patterns and trends which emerge around mental well being suicide and bereavement It examines the primary roadblocks for robust suicide prevention measures and provides great insights into behavioral and personality categories and their relationship with suicide Offering theoretical and empirical perspectives on the issue of suicide and self harm this book will be of interest to students researchers and faculty of behavioral sciences psychology social anthropology demography criminology social work and sociology It will also be an essential read for psychologists and counselors policy makers NGOs CSOs legal experts and media personnel working in the area of suicide prevention and research The Routledge International Handbook on Femicide and Femicide Myrna Dawson, Saide Mobayed Vega, 2023-05-31 This volume explores in depth femicide and feminicide bringing together our current knowledge on this phenomenon and its prevention. No country is free from femicide/feminicide which represents the tip of the iceberg in male violence against women and girls. Therefore it is crucial and timely to better understand how states and their citizens are experiencing and responding to femicide/feminicide globally. Through the work of internationally recognised feminist and grassroots activists, researchers and academics from around the world, this handbook offers the first in-depth global examination of the growing social movement to address femicide and feminicide. It includes the current state of knowledge and the prevalence of femicide/feminicide and its characteristics across countries and world regions, as well as the social and legal responses to these killings. The contributions contained here look at the accomplishments of the past four decades, ongoing challenges and current and future priorities to identify where we need to go from here to prevent femicide/feminicide specifically and male violence against women and girls overall. This transnational multidisciplinary cross-sectoral handbook will contribute to research, policy and practice globally at a time when it is needed the most. It brings a visible global focus to the growing concern about femicide/feminicide, underscoring the importance of adopting a human rights framework in working towards its prevention in an increasingly unstable global world for women and girls. The Art of Dying Deborah Suiter

Gentry, 2006. Although the representation of suicide is commonplace in literature, few studies have explicitly dealt with the meaning of suicide in the works of women writers. The Art of Dying applies theories concerning the division of women literary figures into angels or monsters to representative literary suicides of the nineteenth century, including the suicides of women characters in works by Kate Chopin and Sylvia Plath. The Awakening by Kate Chopin is often misunderstood by critics who read it using the Romantic paradigm. Chopin breaks that paradigm by presenting the suicide of Edna Pontellier as heroic. Suicide is a prevalent motif and theme in two works by Sylvia Plath: The Bell Jar and Ariel. An extensive analysis of Plath's last poem Edge portrays the suicide of the speaker as a calm and heroic act, in keeping with the tone set by Chopin in The Awakening. The Art of Dying concludes by exploring women's need for self-actualization within the framework of love, marriage and motherhood institutions that have always demanded from women an unnatural and harmful degree of unselfishness. The inherent message in the works of artists such as Chopin and Plath is that women should not have to die in order to live. The Art Review, 1907. Art Index, 1930. Papers relating to the foreign relations of the United States, 1882. Man in Art Philip Gilbert Hamerton, 1892. Expression and Survival Craig Greenman, 2009-03-26. Philosophers know suicide primarily as an ethical problem. But in Expression and Survival Craig Greenman argues that when it comes to suicide, the standard ethical approach may do more harm than good. He develops instead an aesthetic approach, arguing that art-making or experiencing it can help a suicidal person survive. Drawing on the work of philosophers and artists, as well as his own experiences, Greenman guides the reader through the landscape to which many suicidal people feel condemned. He traces the problem back to antagonism: we harm others and they harm us, and argues that art broadly construed can help us survive it The result will be of interest to ethicists aestheticians social and political philosophers therapists and anyone who has ever struggled with suicide Also included in this volume are two essays Writing and Ambivalence and What Is Philosophy

The Animal Catalyst Patricia MacCormack,2014-06-19 The Animal Catalyst deals with the question of what is an animal and also in some instances what is a human It pushes critical animal studies in important new directions it re examines basic assumptions suggests new paradigms for how we can live and function ecologically in a world that is not simply ours It argues that it is not enough to recognise the ethical demands placed upon us by our encounters with animals or to critique our often murderous treatment of them this simply reinforces human exceptionalism Featuring contributions from leading academics lawyers artists and activists the book examines key issues such as How compassion for animals reinforces ideas of what distinguishes human beings from other animals How speciesism and human centrality are built into the legal system How individualist subjectivity works in relation to animals who may not think of themselves in the same way How any consideration of animal others must involve a radical deconstruction of our very notion of the human How art philosophy and literature can both avoid speciesism and deliver the human from subjectivity This volume is a unique project which stands at the cutting edge of both animal rights philosophies and posthuman artistic abstract philosophies of identity It will be of great interest to undergraduates and researchers in philosophy ethics particularly continental philosophy critical theory and cultural studies
