Taiwan's Modernization:

Taiwan's Modernization Wei-Bin Zhang, 2003 This book is part of a broad examination of Confucianism and its implications for modernization of the Confucian regions covering mainland China Taiwan Hong Kong Macau Vietnam Japan South Korea North Korea and Singapore It is mainly concerned with the industrialization and modernization of Taiwan To help readers understand the process of modernization the book provides an introduction to the history of Taiwan and to Confucianism and its modern implications As far as social and economic principles are concerned Taiwan's modernization is according to the author characterized by Americanization and modernizing Confucian manifestations The book demonstrates that Taiwan has actually provided an important case study not only for the capitalist spirit of overseas Chinese but also for possible implications of Confucianism for modernization The unique character of this book is that in explaining Taiwan's modernization it deals not only with economic and social issues but also examines the philosophical foundations an endeavor which no other author has systematically made before Taiwan's Modernization in Global Perspective Peter C.

Chow, 2002-10-30 In five decades Taiwan has shifted from an authoritarian regime to a multi party democracy has moved steadily toward modernization and has become an economically affluent socially pluralistic society Its experience provides valuable lessons for developing countries This book offers a critical assessment of Taiwan's path to modernization focusing particularly on developments of constitutional democracy and the rule of law democratic transition and consolidation internationalization and globalization and social developments From its market economy to its democratization Taiwan provides a valuable case study On social developments it provides a unique model of demographic transition rising women's social status and the emergence of the nuclear family In eighteen chapters written by prominent scholars this book examines the multiple aspects of Taiwan's modernization in a global perspective Taiwan's Modernization Wei-Bin Zhang, 2003

Transitions to Modernity in Taiwan Niki Alsford, 2017-07-20 On 19 April 1895 British Consul Lionel Charles Hopkins at the northern port of Tamsui was summoned by Tang Jingsong the governor of Taiwan to his yamen in the western district of Taipei Shortly after his arrival Hopkins was handed a petition Signed by a number of Taiwanese notables the document appealed to the British government to incorporate the island into a protectorate in the wake of an impending Japanese invasion The British declined This book addresses the interconnectivity of these two communities by focusing on the market town of Dadaocheng in northern Taiwan It seeks to contextualise and examine the establishment of a settler society as well as the creation of a sojourning British community showing how they became a precursor of modernity and middle classism there By uncovering who the signatories of the petition were and what their motivation was to call upon the British consulate to bring the island under its protection it brings into focus a remarkable period of transition not only for the history of Taiwan but also for the modern history of China Using 1895 as a year of enquiry it ultimately challenges the current orthodoxy that modernity in Taiwan was simply a by product of the Japanese colonial period As a social and transnational history of the events that took place in Taiwan during 1895 this book will be useful for students of East Asian Studies Modern Chinese Studies and Asian History

The Origins of the Developmental State in Taiwan J. Megan Greene, 2008-04-30 The rapid growth of Taiwan's postwar miracle economy is most frequently credited to the leading role of the state in promoting economic development Megan Greene challenges this standard interpretation in the first in depth examination of the origins of Taiwan's developmental state Greene examines the ways in which the Guomindang state planned and promoted scientific and technical development both in mainland China between 1927 and 1949 and on Taiwan after 1949 Using industrial science policy as a lens she shows that the state even during its most authoritarian periods did not function as a monolithic entity State planners were concerned with maximizing the use of Taiwan's limited resources for industrial development Political leaders on the other hand were most concerned with the state's political survival The developmental state emerged gradually as a result of the combined efforts of technocrats and outsiders including academicians and foreign advisors Only when the political leadership put its authority and weight behind the vision of these early planners did Taiwan's developmental state fully come into being In Taiwan's combination of technocratic expertise and political authoritarianism lie implications for our understanding of changes taking place in mainland China today

In Making China Modernized Wenhui Cai, 1996

Taiwan's Development Cal Clark, 1989-10-06 Known as the Taiwan Miracle the Republic of China on Taiwan R O C has over the past thirty five years experienced one of the world's highest rates of economic growth Arguing that major theoretical frameworks for analyzing international political economy are often too simplistic in that they omit key factors or overly generalize from relationships found only in limited situations Clark uses a detailed case history of the R O C to suggest not only that development and dependency in contemporary society are extremely complex and indeterminate processes but that development in Taiwan deviates significantly from the postulates of the two leading paradigms of international political economy To go even further Clark states that Taiwan s economic growth and transformation resulted from its deviation from the normal dependency syndrome Indeed a development strategy based on economic flexibility and periodic regime change that has made this flexibility possible are hallmarks in Taiwan s success story The United States and other advanced industrial economies whose past successes have created economic and political barriers to future adaptation can be better understood in terms of the characteristics of R O C s development strategy Part I of the three part work focuses on environment first discussing various paradigms and theories about development and then presenting an historical overview of Taiwan The second part investigates Taiwan s international role political development and rapid economic growth The volume closes with a chapter devoted to the implications of the Taiwan experience and political economy paradigms Eight figures and thirty five tables illustrate facets of Taiwan s development including government structure indicators of agricultural development industrialization educational progress and export performance among others Because of the detailed presentations of political economy theories and their variants especially in relation to economic and political development in Taiwan this volume would be an excellent choice for courses in political economy developing societies Asian politics and international relations theory as well as libraries serving students in these areas

Taiwan's Security Policy Michael Chase, 2008 Confounding expectations Taiwan is reducing its military spending even as its sole adversary the People s Republic of China modernizes its military and significantly increases its defense budget Michael Chase examines the key factors that have shaped Taiwan s security policy over a span of three decades Chase explores both the role of US security assurances in formulating Taiwan s defense policy and the profound influence that domestic politics has played He also considers the context of cross Strait relations and the implications of Taiwan s security choices for potential instability and conflict in the region and beyond Relying on extensive Chinese language sources and interviews he offers the most definitive treatment of Taiwan s security policy to date Phoenix and the Lame Lion Alan P.

L. Liu, 1987 Taiwan Weiyuan Zheng, Huosheng Zhan, 1989 The Concept of Slenderness Imposed Upon Women in Taiwan from the 1940s to the 1990s Yu-ling Lin, 1998 Foreign Policy of the Republic of China on Taiwan Yu San Wang, Yousan Wang, 1990 This first major scholarly study examines in detail the history and current reality of the ROC's relations with its Asian neighbors the United States Western Europe the Middle East Africa Latin America and Canada

The Taiwan Political Miracle John Franklin Copper, 1997-02-20 Much has been written about the Taiwan miracle referring to the extremely successful widely praised and often emulated economic development of the Republic of China Less has been written about Taiwan's political development which in the past dozen or so years has been even more dramatic in many ways In just three to four decades the Republic of China's polity has been transformed from an authoritarian closed system to a democracy It did this without a contributing colonial experience and while living under the threat of invasion This book assesses Taiwan's political modernization during a period when political change in Taiwan was remarkable both for its pace and for its impact on Taiwan's polity During this time Taiwan became a paradigm for success in political modernization Internal political reform was the most salient part of the modernization process Elections likewise played an essential role Finally an effective foreign policy facilitated the process and vice versa Students of the process of political development can and should learn much from Taiwan's experiences The Great Transformation Robert Marsh, 2016-09-16 This study of the effects and directions of social change in Taiwan examines questions such as what was the society of Taiwan like before the current period of economic growth how has it changed and are there aspects that did not change despite the significant transformation in some spheres
