C. Nagasubramani, Adult learners have more options for enrolling in postsecondary education than ever before and they are able to use their learning style preference in deciding which program best meets their needs For some of these students those programs are fully online and for others there is minimal use of technology As technology grows and become more integrated into individual lives the unique learning styles and preferences of adults need to be incorporated into instructional design Drawing on a regional sample of US colleges 545 adult learners in a graduate programs were surveyed about how to effectively build community in their online classes Results indicated some agreement with these instructional tools Mature adult learners however were found to have stronger agreement with strategies that included work outside of the formal online class These results suggest perhaps a greater comfort for adults in working in spaces where there is less likelihood of being judged or graded and that they might value relational work with other students in different ways than younger adults

Teaching and Researching: Speaking Rebecca Hughes, 2013-11-04 Speaking is a dynamic interpersonal process and one that strongly influences how we are perceived by others in a range of formal and everyday contexts Despite this speaking is often researched and taught as if it is simply writing delivered in a different mode In Teaching and Researching Speaking Rebecca Hughes suggests that we have less understanding than we might of important meaning making aspects of speech such as prosody gaze affect and the ways speakers collaborate and negotiate with one another in interaction This thoroughly revised and updated second edition looks to the future of the field offering A new chapter on assessment discussing high stakes oral language testing contexts such as immigration New material considering access to spoken data via the worldwide web and new technologies that allow neurolinguistic insights formerly hidden from view Summaries and case studies to help the reader understand how to approach researching speaking and encourages practitioners to question the models of speaking that they are using in their classrooms Reviewing materials and assessment practices in the light of current knowledge about spoken language and highlighting areas for new work and collaboration between researchers and practitioners this book will be a valuable resource for anyone involved in language teaching
