countenance grief and infirmities had graven many a furrow could not only command but compel submission was legible alike in his thin firmly closed lips and in the zeal with which his following of truculent and bearded fighting men armed to the teeth obeyed his slightest sign His Egyptian attendant the head of the Hermeneutai the guild of the Dragomans of that period was a swarthy and surly native of Memphis whenever he accidentally came too close to the fierce looking riders of the dromedaries he shrunk his shoulders as if he expected a blow or a push while he poured out question and answer to the Merchant Haschim the owner of the caravan without timidity and with the voluble garrulity of his tribe You seem very much at home here in Memphis he observed when the old man had expressed his surprise at the decadence and melancholy change in the city Thirty years ago replied the merchant my business often brought me hither How many houses are now empty and in ruins where formerly only heavy coin could secure admittance Ruins on all sides Who has so cruelly mutilated that fine church My fellow believers left every Christian fane untouched that I know from our chief Amru himself It was the principal church of the Melchites the Emperor s minions cried the guide as if that were ample explanation of the fact The merchant however did not take it so Well he said and what is there so dreadful in their creed
