Fowler,1993 Since 1945 North Americans have spent hundreds of billions of dollars on urban development literally transforming the landscape of the continent This development has been disastrous Edmund Fowler maintains because it is inordinately expensive destructive of the environment and disruptive of healthy social life and authentic politics Revealing the connections between our basic cultural beliefs and why we build the way we do he stresses that to build cities that work we must become aware of how our personal choices contribute to the form of the built environment Recommended Building Code for Cities with Populations from 25,000 to 150,000 Portland Cement Association,1925 The Building of Cities Harvey H. Kaiser,2013-08-09 In this classic book that records a moment in the history of urban planning the architect and city planner Harvey H Kaiser examines the city building process from the time when a proposal for urban development is first conceived to the early stages of construction To illuminate the factors that underlie acceptance or rejection of community development Kaiser focuses on the proposals for three towns in upstate New York Lysander near Syracuse and Gananda and Riverton both near Rochester These were brand new developments and municipalities and thus quite different from other trends of suburbanization that attached development onto existing municipalities Step by step he describes what happened in each of these communities during the presentation of the initial proposal how parties interacted with each other and how the climate of the community influenced the actions of the parties Basing his work on hundreds of interviews attendance at public meetings and a review of many articles and documents Kaiser shows that in each case the emergence of controversy and degree of acceptance was influenced by the developer s leadership the characteristics of the developer s organization and the method of presenting the proposal to the public Kaiser brings to his comparative approach a background in the rough and tumble of day to day project management and the development of plans as well as their administration First published in 1978 The Building of Cities remains an invaluable resource for developers architects public officials and citizens involved in local government

The Bondage of Cities Frank Parsons,1900 New Cities for Old Louis Justement,2018-02-10 Excerpt from New Cities for Old City Building in Terms of Space Time and Money I have served on numerous professional committees on these subjects I have de signed a number of large public housing projects and about an equal number of privately financed housing proj ects I have had the opportunity of observing the financial methods of speculative builders For the past ten years I have studied the con icting claims of both public and pri vate housers I was led to undertake a study of urban reconstruction because I became convinced that the question of what to do with slums was merely a part of the question of what to do with cities and that this in turn was merely a part of a still broader question Can we best preserve our system of private enterprise by drifting or by attempting to solve our problems About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
