Holmes, 1966 The Furniture Journal, 1929 Ward's Automobile Topics, 1920 Exploring the Relationship Between Gender and Cause in Consumer Processing of Cause-related Marketing Alexandra Magalhães Vilela, 2006 Cause related marketing CRM a tool of corporate social responsibility has grown significantly since the beginning of the 1980s The strategy consists of a contribution to a cause through a purchase of a product service by consumers This research set out to test the potential influence of gender and or values on CRM message evaluations for a health disease versus non health disease cause A new model combining the Elaboration Likelihood Model and the Selectivity Model is tested Additionally by perceiving and processing corporations intentions as exploitative consumers may develop resistance toward the company its brand product and the cause being supported Whether consumers have negative attitudes and purchase intentions toward companies sponsoring causes is also examined in this research A 2 gender women men x 2 groups treatment control x 2 corporations sponsoring health disease non health disease causes within subject repeated measures experimental design was applied The experiment was divided in three sessions 1 pretest where participants rated two existing companies 2 treatment where priming effects of a social cause are measured and 3 posttest a two week follow up procedure to gauge participants responses at a delay A total of 444 students participated in the study As predicted women demonstrated more positive attitudes toward the company brand product sponsoring a health disease cause and the sponsorship of a health disease cause than did men No evidence was found that women favored more a health disease cause than a non health disease cause Types of social causes did not affect individuals involvement with the product of companies sponsoring social causes either Although women evaluated themselves as more caring than did men caring values did not mediate the relationship between gender and attitudes toward corporate sponsorship and purchase intentions As expected consumers demonstrated more resistance to CRM messages if they had less positive general attitudes toward corporate sponsorship of a social cause Particularly men showed more skepticism toward CRM programs than did women However the expectations for the Selectivity Model were not supported as women and men did not process messages differently
