

So the fabric is produced in two halves at the same time, one starting at the upper end, one at the lower end of the warp, and both growing towards its centre. A sword or beater is generally used to force the twists evenly to both ends. Eventually a point is reached when only a short length of untwisted threads remains at the centre and there is no more space for the fingers to work between the upper and lower halves of the fabric. At this central meeting line some form of fastening is essential in order to lock in place the contrary twists of the two halves of the fabric and so prevent them undoing.

Perhaps those unfamiliar with the technique can most simply grasp its principles in the following practical way.

Tie three threads so that they are fixed at both ends, as in Fig. 2(a). Now begin braiding (plaiting) at the top of this little warp. First cross thread 1 over thread 2, near the upper end, as in Fig. 2(b). Inevitably thread 1 will also cross thread 2 below the hands, but the crossing will be in the opposite direction. Then cross thread 3 over thread 1, as in Fig. 2(c), and again the mirror image of this crossing will take place below. So two braids are being produced at the same time, one growing downwards from the top, one growing upwards
