

Capacidades tecnológicas en empresas sociales emergentes: una ruta de impacto social

Technological capabilities in emerging social enterprises: a pathway to social impact

Alfredo Guatemala Mariano¹  , Germán Martínez Prats¹

RESUMEN

Las empresas sociales buscan solucionar problemas significativos de la humanidad mediante la maximización del impacto social de sus productos o servicios. La tecnología y la innovación representan oportunidades clave para su desarrollo. Esta investigación tuvo como objetivo analizar las capacidades tecnológicas de las empresas sociales emergentes con miras a potenciar su impacto social. Utilizando un enfoque cualitativo, se realizó una revisión sistemática de la literatura en las bases de datos de Redalyc, Web of Science y ScienceDirect con descriptores temáticos como "empresas sociales y tecnología" y "social tech ventures". De las investigaciones revisadas, 56 fueron seleccionadas para un análisis detallado. Los resultados indican que las empresas emergentes con base tecnológica se orientan hacia el impacto social, siendo esencial la construcción de capacidades tecnológicas. Factores como la educación de los fundadores y el acceso a financiamiento juegan un papel crucial. Estos hallazgos sientan las bases para futuros estudios que contribuyan al desarrollo económico y social de América Latina.

INTRODUCCIÓN

Desde sus inicios, las empresas tradicionalmente han tenido el propósito de generar beneficios a los accionistas. No obstante, expertos reconocidos como Michael Porter sostienen que las empresas también deben abordar problemas sociales que exceden las capacidades de intervención de las instituciones tradicionales, tales como gobiernos, entidades filantrópicas y organizaciones no gubernamentales. Las empresas sociales surgen como entidades híbridas, enfocadas en abordar desafíos globales al combinar actividades lucrativas con una misión clara y definida (Doherty et al., 2014). Estas compañías ofrecen una alternativa a las Organizaciones No Gubernamentales (ONG), esfuerzos gubernamentales y filantropía, actores tradicionalmente encargados de atender problemáticas sociales.

Towards Technology Models for MSEs in Kenya Eliud Moyi, Peter Njiraini, 2005

Innovation and Small Enterprises in the Third World Meine Pieter van Dijk, Henry Sandee, 2002 Innovation is crucial for small enterprises to become and remain competitive in the global economy In this book the authors have combined theoretical insights with comprehensive case studies on innovation among small scale enterprises in developing countries paying particular attention to technological change in clusters of small firms The authors deliberately use a broad definition of innovation in order to emphasise the fact that technological change and innovation adoption takes place on a wider scale and in a greater number of forms than is frequently assumed The unusual case studies such as the Kenyan food processing sector furniture making in Nicaragua and tile manufacturing in Indonesia highlight the patterns of innovation adoption and diffusion and serve as a unique and fascinating backdrop to the study The authors pay specific attention to innovation by small enterprises in times of economic crisis and go on to assess the mechanisms employed to promote innovation They demonstrate that although radical innovation among small enterprises occurs on a limited scale innovation through gradual incremental improvements in production processes and products is continuous Innovation and Small Enterprises in the Third World will be widely read by academics researchers and policymakers concerned with innovation adoption and diffusion and third world development issues
