

Teen Suicide Rates & Statistics

RachelsChallenge.org

Teen suicide statistics have risen dramatically in the last several years.

The rates of teen suicide increased substantially following the COVID-19 pandemic. As of 2021, suicide is the second leading cause of death for people between 10 and 14 years old and the third leading cause of death for adolescents between 15 and 19 years old.

These youth suicide facts are rightly cause for immediate concern. Only through targeted prevention efforts, understanding the challenges facing teens, and recognizing the warning signs can we support teenagers in living healthy, productive, and fulfilling lives.

Current Teen Suicide Statistics

The last two decades have seen a sharp increase in suicide rates in teens.

The most recent data on teen suicide rates by year from the CDC reported 7,126 suicide deaths in 2021 and 6,529 in 2022 — an 8.4% decrease. While this indicates a trend in the right direction, rates are still substantially higher than just 17 years ago.
