Bryan Carne, 1984-11-30 Organized society depends on communication of all kinds including the ability to communicate at a distance instantaneously With the development of solid state electronics and its application to digital processing telecommunication has become extremely important to large segments of American business The introduction of competition to serve these voice data and video needs has expanded the number of service options available and some of them are finding their way into the residential sector From a relatively stable mature industry telecommunication has rapidly become a technology driven marketplace in which a host of companies are competing for customer attention with new services and equipment Heretofore books on telecommunications have addressed facilities and how they work In this book I am seeking to provide a much broader perspective which includes information on the motives driving the business itself on new media and services and on advancing technologies as well as on digital facilities and their integration into the environment of future businesses and households Covering so wide a set of topics presents many problems not the least of which is that the character of the information is different in each chapter and the material will be read by persons skilled in disparate fields It is possible to read each chapter by itself although a reading of all of them is needed to understand the new dimensions being introduced into the telecommunication experience
