The Archaeology Of Ships:

The Archaeology of Boats & Ships Basil Greenhill, John S. Morrison, 1995 This edition brings together all the archaeological knowledge of the world's boats and ships for the benefit of the maritime archaeologist as well as for the general reader and enthusiast the historian and the student But it is much more than a catalogue of the world's boat finds The author has collated all the available evidence on the evolution of boat and shipbuilding through the ages and examines it as a crucial part of the development of changing civilizations

The Archaeology of Ships of War Mensun Bound, 1995 One of two books based on the proceedings of the First International Conference on The Archaeology of Ships of War held at the Royal Naval College Greenwich from the 31st October to the 1st November 1992

The archaeology of ships Paul Johnstone, 1970

Archaeology and the Social History of Ships Richard A. Gould, 2000-04-13 Maritime archaeology deals with shipwrecks and is carried out by divers rather than diggers But this is by no means a marginal branch of archaeology It embraces maritime history analysing changes in ship building navigation reconstructing the infrastructure of waterborne commerce and offers fresh perspectives on the cultures and societies that produced the ships and sailors Drawing on detailed and recent case studies Richard Gould provides an up to date review of the field and a clear exposition of new developments in undersea technologies He also argues for the careful management of underwater cultural resources

Archaeology and the Social History of Ships Richard A. Gould, 2011-04-29 Maritime archaeology deals with shipwrecks and is carried out by divers rather than diggers It embraces maritime history and analyses changes in shipbuilding navigation and seamanship and offers fresh perspectives on the cultures and societies that produced the ships and sailors Drawing on detailed past and recent case studies Richard A Gould provides an up to date review of the field that includes dramatic new findings arising from improved undersea technologies This second edition of Archaeology and the Social History of Ships has been updated throughout to reflect new findings and new interpretations of old sites The new edition explores advances in undersea technology in archaeology especially remotely operated vehicles The book reviews many of the major recent shipwreck findings including the Vasa in Stockholm the Viking wrecks at Roskilde Fjord and the Titanic

A Maritime Archaeology of Ships J. R. Adams, 2013-12-11 In the last fifty years the investigation of maritime archaeological sites in the sea in the coastal zone and in their interconnecting locales has emerged as one of archaeology's most dynamic and fast developing fields No longer a niche interest maritime archaeology is recognised as having central relevance in the integrated study of the human past Within maritime archaeology the study of watercraft has been understandably prominent and yet their potential is far from exhausted In this book Jon Adams evaluates key episodes of technical change in the ways that ships were conceived designed built used and disposed of As technological puzzles they have long confounded explanation but when viewed in the context of the societies in which they were created mysteries begin to dissolve Shipbuilding is social practice and as one of the most complex artefacts made changes in their technology provide a lens through which to view the ideologies strategies and agency of social change Adams argues that the harnessing of shipbuilding was one of the ways in which medieval society became modern and while the primary case studies are historical he also demonstrates that the relationships between ships and society have key implications for our understanding of prehistory in which seafaring and communication had similarly profound effects on the tide of human affairs

Boats, Ships and Shipyards Carlo Beltrame,2016-10-03 From sewn planked boats in Early Dynastic Egypt to Late Roman wrecks in Italy and the design of Venetian Merchant Galleys this huge volume gathers together fifty three papers presenting new research on the archaeology and history of ancient ships and shipbuilding traditions The papers have been grouped into several thematic sections including ships of the Mediterranean the reconstruction of ancient ships from life size reconstructions to computer models the study of shipyards shipsheds and slipways of the Mediterranean and Europe Venetian Galleys of the 15th and 16th centuries and North European medieval and post medieval ships These papers which were presented at the Ninth International Symposium on Boat and Ship Archaeology ISBSA held in Venice 2000 Carlo Beltrame is a freelance archaeologist and contract professor of Maritime archaeology at Universit Ca Foscari of Venice and of Naval archaeology at Universita della Tuscia of Viterbo He specializes in the archaeology of ship construction from antiquity until the Renaissance period and methodology in maritime archaeology

The Life and Times of a Merchant Sailor Jason M. Burns,2003 Historical archaeologists are in a unique position to analyze both historical documents and archaeological data in order to generate hypotheses and draw conclusions In this work the data not only provided the history of the ship Catharine but also the economic social and political environments in which the ship was built and employed This work focuses not only on the shipwreck and the wrecking event but on the history and archaeology of a single ship With this expanded view the research also delves into International shipbuilding The struggle for dominance in the ship trade in the 19th century This book will be of interest to underwater historical and cultural archaeologists social historians cultural heritage managers and archaeologists working in the southeastern United States

The Archaeology of Medieval Ships and Harbours in Northern Europe Sean McGrail,1979 Cover title Medieval ships and harbours in northern Europe

Our Blue Planet Ben Ford, Jessi J. Halligan, Alexis Catsambis,2020 Our Blue Planet provides a comprehensive introduction to the field of maritime and underwater archaeology Situating the field within the broader study of history and archaeology this book advocates that an understanding of how our ancestors interacted with rivers lakes and oceans is integral to comprehending the human past Our Blue Planet covers the full breadth of maritime and underwater archaeology including formerly terrestrial sites drowned by rising sea levels coastal sites and a wide variety of wreck sites ranging across the globe and spanning from antiquity to World War II Beginning with a definition of the field and several chapters dedicated to the methods of finding recording and interpreting submerged sites Our Blue Planet provides an entry point for all readers whether or not they are familiar with maritime and underwater archaeology or archaeology in general The book then shifts to a thematic approach with chapters exploring human interactions with the watery world both along the coasts and by ship. These chapters discuss the relationships between culture, technology, and environment that allowed humans through time to spread across the globe. Because ships were the primary means for humans to interact with large bodies of water, they are the focus of several chapters on the development of shipbuilding technology, the lives of sailors, and the uses of ships in exploration, expansion, and warfare. The book ends with chapters on how and why the non-renewable submerged archaeological record should be managed so that both current and future generations can learn from the achievements and failures of past societies, as well as on how anyone can become involved in maritime and underwater archaeology. Throughout, the reader benefits from the personal reflections of a number of leading figures in the field.

Seagoing Ships and Seamanship in the Bronze Age Levant Shelley Wachsmann, 2018-05-04. During the Bronze Age, the ancient societies that ringed the Mediterranean, once mostly separate and isolated, began to reach across the great expanse of sea to conduct trade, marking an age of immense cultural growth and technological development. These intersocietal lines of communication and paths for commerce relied on rigorous open water travel. And as a potential superhighway, the Mediterranean demanded much in the way of seafaring knowledge and innovative ship design if it were to be successfully navigated. In Seagoing Ships and Seamanship in the Bronze Age Levant, Shelley Wachsmann presents a one-of-a-kind comprehensive examination of how the early eastern Mediterranean cultures took to the sea and how they evolved as a result. The author surveys the blue water ships of the Egyptians, Syro-Canaanites, Cypriots, Early Bronze Age Aegeans, Minoans, Mycenaeans, and Sea Peoples, and discusses known Bronze Age shipwrecks. Relying on archaeological, ethnological, iconographic, and textual evidence, Wachsmann delivers a fascinating and intricate rendering of virtually every aspect of early sea travel, from ship construction and propulsion to war on the open water, piracy, and laws pertaining to conduct at sea. This broad study is further enhanced by contributions from other renowned scholars. J. Hoftijzer and W. H. van Soldt offer new and illuminating translations of Ugaritic and Akkadian documents that refer to seafaring. J. R. Lenz delves into the Homeric Greek lexicon to search out possible references to the birdlike shapes that adorned early ships' stem and stern. F. Hocker provides a useful appendix and glossary of nautical terms, and George F. Bass's foreword frames the study's scholarly significance and discusses its place in the nautical archaeological canon. This book brings together for the first time the entire corpus of evidence pertaining to Bronze Age seafaring and will be of special value to archaeologists, maritime historians, philologists, and Bronze Age textual scholars. Offering an abundance of line drawings and photographs and written in a style that makes the material easily accessible to the layperson, Wachsmann's study is certain to become a standard reference for anyone interested in the dawn of sea travel.

Excavating Ships of War Mensun Bound, 1998. Throughout history, the fighting ship has been one of the finest expressions of technology of which any society at any moment is capable. Intended as a companion volume to The Archaeology of Ships of War, this book brings together a selection of many of the most important warship excavations by some of the world's most respected maritime archaeologists A Maritime Archaeology of Ships Jonathan Adams, 2013

Ships from the Depths Fredrik Søreide, 2011-04-28 Deepwater archaeology uncovers secrets from the ancient maritime past. Thousands of shipwrecks and archaeological sites lie undiscovered in deep water, potentially holding important clues to our maritime past. Scientists have explored only a small percentage of the oceans' depths, as 98 percent of the seabed lies well beyond the reach of conventional diving. Ships from the Depths surveys the dramatic advances in technology over the last few years that have made it possible for scientists to locate, study, and catalogue archaeological sites in waters previously inaccessible to humans. Researcher and explorer Fredrik Søreide presents the development of deepwater archaeology since 1971, when Willard Bascom designed his Alcoa Seaprobe to locate and raise deepwater wrecks in the Mediterranean. Accompanied by descriptions and color photographs of deepwater projects and equipment, this book considers not only techniques that have been developed for location and observation of sites but also removal and excavation methods distinctive to these unique locations far beyond the reach of scuba gear. Søreide provides an introduction to and survey of the history, development, and potential of this exciting branch of nautical archaeology. Scholars and field archaeologists will appreciate this handy compendium of the current state of the discipline and technology, and general readers will relish this comprehensive look at the challenges and opportunities associated with locating and studying historical and ancient shipwrecks in some of the world's deepest waters. The Ship That Held Up Wall Street Warren Curtis Riess, 2014-11-18

In January 1982, archaeologists conducting a pre-construction excavation at 175 Water Street in Lower Manhattan found the remains of an eighteenth-century ship. Uncertain of what they had found or what its value might be, they called in two nautical archaeologists, Warren Riess and Sheli Smith, to direct the excavation and analysis of the ship's remains. As it turned out, the mystery ship's age and type meant that its careful study would help answer some important questions about the commerce and transportation of an earlier era of American history. The Ship That Held Up Wall Street tells the whole story of the discovery, excavation, and study of what came to be called the Ronson ship site, named for the site's developer, Howard Ronson. Entombed for more than two hundred years, the Princess Carolina proved to be the first major discovery of a colonial merchant ship. Years of arduous analytical work have led to critical breakthroughs revealing how the ship was designed and constructed, its probable identity as a vessel built in Charleston, South Carolina, its history as a merchant ship, and why and how it came to be buried in Manhattan. The Art and Archaeology of Venetian Ships and Boats Lillian Ray Martin, 2001

Presents a brief history of Venetian art and then catalogues each known piece of Venetian art that depicts watercraft. Through detailed analysis of these images, the author reveals important facts about the construction, rigging, and use of these watercraft. Archaeology of East Asian Shipbuilding Jun Kimura, 2016-04-12 North American Society for Oceanic History, John Lyman Book Award in Naval and Maritime Reference Works and Published Primary Sources, Honorable Mention. In this innovative study, Jun Kimura integrates historical data with archaeological findings to examine a wide array of eleventh through nineteenth century ships from China Korea and Japan Chinese junks and Japanese sailing ships were known throughout the world and this work illustrates why their innovative designs have survived the centuries Kimura presents an extensive dataset of excavated coastal and oceangoing ships that traveled the Yellow Sea the East China Sea and the South China Sea Three detailed case studies include the Shinan and Quanzhou wrecks and the Takashima underwater site Using travel documents cargo manifests iconographic paintings and other descriptive resources as well as the archaeological evidence of hull components wooden timbers and iron remains Kimura sheds new light on East Asian shipbuilding traditions

The Archaeology of Watercraft Abandonment Nathan Richards, Sami Kay Seeb, 2013-06-05 The historical importance and archaeological potential of deliberately discarded watercraft has not been a major feature of maritime archaeological enquiry While research on the topic has appeared since the 1970s as books chapters and articles most examples have been limited in focus and distribution and in most cases disseminated as unpublished archaeological reports i e the gray literature So too has there been a lack of a single source representing the diversity of geographical historic thematic and theoretical contexts that ships graveyard sites and deliberately abandoned vessels represent In contrast with much of the theoretical or case specific literature on the theme of watercraft discard this volume communicates to the reader the common heritage and global themes that ships graveyard sites represent It serves as a blueprint to illustrate how the remains of abandoned vessels in ships graveyards are sites of considerable research value Moreover the case studies in this volume assist researchers in understanding the evolution of maritime technologies economies and societies This volume is intended to expose research potential create discussion and reinforce the significance of a prevalent cultural resource that is often overlooked Ships and Shipwrecks of the Americas George Fletcher Bass, 1996 The rich maritime history of the New World is the focus of this work bringing together essays by leading nautical archaeologists The narrative is enhanced by paintings charts diagrams and maps Encyclopaedia of Underwater and Maritime Archaeology James P. Delgado, 1997 The theory and practice of underwater archaeology includes nearly every archaeological discipline from prehistoric archaeology to the modern era

Embracing the Track of Term: An Emotional Symphony within The Archaeology Of Ships
