Lindo,2017-10-12 Excerpt from The Art of Accompanying A few anecdotes have been allowed to creep into the book chie y in this section Humorous experiences fall to the lot of the accompanist far more frequently than to any other class of musicians and it seems a pity not to put some of them on record It is possible that a considerable portion of this sec ond part will prove anathema to art lovers and to those who consider chapters on the lighter forms of music to be out of place in an educational treatise Undoubtedly it is not customary in an art manual to deal with art except in its higher manifestations We needs must love the high est when we see it But whereas the creative artist can usually choose the type of work he will create and the executive artist the type of work he will perform the accompanist has no choice whatever He must play what is given him to play and this being so he must learn to get the utmost possible effect even out of works that as art products can make no claim to anybody s esteem About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Art of Accompanying Algernon H. Lindo,2015-06-24 Excerpt from The Art of Accompanying There are certain difficulties both for author and student connected with a book on Accompanying that are not met with in works dealing with other branches of musical activity The chief difficulty is that so little has been written about accompanying that this book possesses the disadvantage of being not the last but almost the first word upon the subject In every phase of human endeavor artistic philosophical theological political or scientific the heterodoxy of one generation becomes the orthodoxy of the next and the student with a choice of roads all leading to Rome can when in doubt weigh the conflicting theories of various guides philosophers and friends and choose some via media down which he can travel in safety to his goal When however the choice of authorities is limited to almost a single work he has no touchstone by which to test the validity of the advice therein proffered The only claim to authority that this work possesses is that it records the author s experiences of more than twenty years of accompanying at every kind of concert and for every grade of artist Each incident described in it is one that happened personally to the author with the exception of the one mentioned at the end of Chapter I but he was present on that occasion and overheard the conversation narrated In addition to his personal experiences the author has enjoyed the acquaintanceship and in some cases the personal friendship of nearly every well known English accompanist and has carefully studied their methods as well as the methods of many famous Continental accompanists About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
