Vucelic, J.F. Colombel, C. Gasche, J. Schölmerich, 2004-12-09 The amount of information on the pathogenesis of inflammatory bowel disease is growing rapidly This is reflected by a continuous increase in the number of papers presented at international GI meetings To make things more difficult for practicing physicians there is also a large number of new clinical trials being published which require periodical critical reviews and recommendations Faced with these issues the scientific committee of the Falk Symposium No 140 decided to take a different approach and to apply a novel format that is reflected in the title of the Symposium Translation from basic research to clinical practice This book contains the proceedings of that Symposium held in Dubrovnik

Croatia on May 7 8 2004 The sections are designed so that they start with the information from basic sciences on different aspects of these complex diseases and further lead to their clinical implications Special attention is paid to the mechanisms of actions of established drugs The last two sections are clinically oriented and focus on the most difficult aspects of both Crohn s disease and ulcerative colitis This format provides state of the art chapters by leading experts in the field and at the same time up to date information on the clinical application of the new knowledge

Options in Gastroenterology Dene C. Peters,2000 Biodegradable Polymers for Biomedical Applications , volume III Liqun Yang,Jianshe Hu,Shuai Jiang,Yeh-Hsing Lao,Yang Yao,2025-02-03 Biodegradable polymers are an important class of polymers due to their good biodegradability and biocompatibility The research and application of biodegradable polymers in biomedical fields have attracted extensive attention especially in that of drug delivery tissue engineering and regenerative medicine Biodegradable polymers can be broken down in vivo through enzymatic and non enzymatic degradation For biomedical applications the chemical and mechanical properties degradation mechanism and products and other factors of the polymers play a critical role in their degradation behaviors and application Thus many essential issues must be considered in the design of biodegradable polymers for biomedical application For instance sufficient mechanical strength is important for scaffold materials to provide three dimensional space for cells and its degradation rate must be compatible with tissue regeneration When used as the drug carriers for some implants controllable degradation rate is also required for the biodegradable polymers to avoid explosive release besides good permeability More importantly the biodegradable polymers must have good biocompatibility to avoid adverse reactions such as inflammation in the body and the degradation products must be non toxic and should not be accumulated in the body To meet such requirements the chemical and physical as well as the degradation properties of polymers must be properly tailored The American Journal of Gastroenterology ,1995 Horizons in Gastroenterology Richard H. Hunt,1992
