Language Documentation Lenore A. Grenoble, N. Louanna Furbee, 2010-11-25 Language documentation also often called documentary linguistics is a relatively new subfield in linguistics which has emerged in part as a response to the pressing need for collecting, describing and archiving material on the increasing number of endangered languages. The present book details the most recent developments in this rapidly developing field with papers written by linguists primarily based in academic institutions in North America although many conduct their fieldwork elsewhere. The articles in this volume position papers and case studies focus on some of the most critical issues in the field. These include 1 the nature of contributions to linguistic theory and method provided by documentary linguistics including the content appropriate for documentation 2 the impact and demands of technology in documentation 3 matters of practice in collaborations among linguists and communities and in the necessary training of students and community members to conduct documentation activities and 4 the ethical issues involved in documentary linguistics. Indian Linguistics : Journal of the Linguistic Society of India ,2008 Linguistic Typology ,1999 Counsel from the Ancients Paul Hockings, 1988 Automatic Documentation and Mathematical Linguistics ,1998 1968 Index to ERIC Documents in Linguistics and Uncommonly Taught Languages and Selected Bibliography of Related Titles Frederick W.
