School of Architecture and Urban Design,1990 Nature's Laboratory Elizabeth Grennan Browning,2022-11-15 The author argues that Chicago a city of rapid growth and severe labor unrest as well as a gateway to the West offers the clearest lens for analyzing the history of the intellectual divide between countryside and city in the United States at the end of the nineteenth century She shows that Chicago served as a kind of urban laboratory where numerous public intellectuals experimented with various strains of environmental thinking

The Skyscraper and the White City Gerald Larson,2025-11-08 This book presents and critiques the pioneering skyscraper designs of Chicago architect John Root during the 1880s It places these within the larger contexts of both contemporary buildings in New York and the evolving theories of European Modern architectural theory It then presents Root s ideas and designs for the 1893 Chicago World s Fair and once again places these within the context of the national and local political battles over where the Fair would be erected Its premise is that Root and not Louis H Sullivan deserves to be recognized as the leading designer and theorist of the Chicago School of Architecture during the 1880s

Architecture and Building ,1912 The Courthouse and the Depot Wilber W. Caldwell,2001 Their songs insist that the arrival of the railroad and the appearance of the tiny depot often created such hope that it inspired the construction of the architectural extravaganzas that were the courthouses of the era In these buildings the distorted myth of the Old South collided head on with the equally deformed myth of the New South the joy of life He had accepted engrossing work two years before as a refuge from sorrow and this had restored the sanity of his temper his sensitive consciousness of the beauty of the world He was of a genus rare in the West at that time one which until then we had scarcely encountered To call it the artistic type would be hackneyed and not fairly descriptive for this phrase has come to imply a complete give and take of emotion and expression in a nature which has no reserves I would describe him rather without reference to types as a creature devoted to beauty by every instinct of his soul one whose imagination instinctively rounded out the rhythms and unities of this inscrutable world of sense and spirit Thus he was hospitable to the music of life and impermeable to its dissonance Pain and evil he apprehended philosophically from afar a basic undersong in the universal paean but their notes were not strident to his consciousness they did not reach him as discord Perhaps the special quality of the man is best described by the word musical He was deeply instinctively musical All nature all life he apprehended as harmony harmonies of line of color of sound of spirit And underlying this sensuous consciousness in his mind lay that intuition of mathematical law which is the basis of all harmony His sense of law was inherent in his sense of beauty and it was in the symmetrical union of these two the mathematical and the artistic apprehension that his genius for architecture lay For architecture for music also and most of all for life Life is the highest art and he
