Tree Fruit Production:

Tree Fruit Production Benjamin J. Teskey, 2012-12-06 This is a revised and updated edition of the book Tree Fruit Production first published in 1959 and extensively revised in the second edition in 1972. Considerable advances have been made in recent years in the scientific production and handling of deciduous tree fruits in North America. This third edition brings together in up to date usable text book form the essence of pertinent research and practical experience on the subject. Although the principles involved in the different operations of orchard management such as pruning, soil management, fruit thinning and harvesting remain constant, practices and techniques have been undergoing considerable change. Economic and social changes have been brought to bear in altering the approach to such aspects of pomology as tree size, plant density, mechanical harvesting, pest control and irrigation. Greatly increased costs of production have swung the emphasis of attention toward the wider use of organic chemicals in the orchard. Growth regulating substances are finding a place in the orchard not only for fruit thinning, preharvest drop control and weed suppression but also for other purposes such as promotion of early flowering, tree training, pruning and the advancement and extension of the harvest season. The trend toward the smaller, more easily and economically managed apple tree which began slowly some three or more decades ago and increased rapidly in subsequent years is now complete.

Automation in Tree Fruit Production Qin Zhang, 2017-11-30 Automation in agriculture is made possible by the integration of advanced agricultural technology and precision agriculture management. This book uniquely will focus on applications of automation to the important industry of tree fruit production. Written by experts in agricultural automation technology from around the world, chapters in this book cover topics such as automated tree fruit production systems, plant stress sensing and high throughput phenotyping in precision horticulture, the economics of automation in tree fruit production, light interception sensing systems for canopy management, precision irrigation and water management, precision technologies for pest and disease management, opportunities for the application of robotics in tree fruit production and the mechanical harvesting and handling of fruit crops. The book is a representative concise overview of the variety of technologies currently being applied to tree fruit crops around the world and the challenges faced by engineers and farmers that these technologies raise. It is aimed at researchers and graduate students of agriculture systems, agricultural and biological engineering, crop and soil sciences, horticulture, precision agriculture and other relevant disciplines. It will also be of use to agriculture consultants, engineers and other professionals such as agricultural equipment manufacturers and management professionals who use precision agriculture technologies.
