

POLICY FORMATION

INTRODUCTION

One of the essential functions of government is policy-formation. In the words of Dr. Appleby, the essence of public administration is policymaking. Policy is prior to every action. It is a pre-requisite to all management. It is the policy which sets the task for administration. It provides the framework within which all actions for the accomplishment of an objective are to be activated. Policy is in fact, planning for action. It is getting ready for setting the sails to reach the desired destination.

The Meaning of Policy

Policy means a decision as to what shall be done and how, when and where. In the words of Terry "A Policy is a verbal, written or implied basic guide to action that is adopted and followed by a manager".

In the words of Dimmock, "Policies are the consciously acknowledged rules of conduct that guide administrative decisions".

According to Koontz and O'Donnell, "Policies are general statements or understandings which guide or channel thinking in the decisionmaking of subordinates".

Policy and Other Concepts

Policy is not the same thing as rule because policy is dynamic and flexible whereas rule is specific and rigid. There is also a difference between policy and custom in so far as the former is the product of conscious effort; the latter grows automatically in the soil of a society. Policy should also be distinguished from decision. Though policy itself is a big decision, it provides the framework within which several other series of decisions are taken.

Policy is not the same thing as method of procedure because the latter exists to effectuate the former. Policy deals with basic issues, basic to the working of the whole administrative machinery.

The Following Attributes of Policy May be Noted

- (i) Policy is formulated in the context of organisational objectives.

Nontimber Forest Products in the United States Eric T. Jones,Rebecca Jean McLain,James F. Weigand,2002 A quiet revolution is taking place in America s forests Once seen primarily as stands of timber our woodlands are now prized as a rich source of a wide range of commodities from wild mushrooms and maple sugar to hundreds of medicinal plants whose uses have only begun to be fully realized Now as timber harvesting becomes more mechanized and requires less labor the image of the lumberjack is being replaced by that of the forager This book provides the first comprehensive examination of nontimber forest products NTFPs in the United States illustrating their diverse importance describing the people who harvest them and outlining the steps that are being taken to ensure access to them As the first extensive national overview of NTFP policy and management specific to the United States it brings together research from numerous disciplines and analytical perspectives such as economics mycology history ecology law entomology forestry geography and anthropology in order to provide a cohesive picture of the current and potential role of NTFPs The contributors review the state of scientific knowledge of NTFPs by offering a survey of commercial and noncommercial products an overview of uses and users and discussions of sustainable management issues associated with ecology cultural traditions forest policy and commerce They examine some of the major social economic and biological benefits of NTFPs while also addressing the potential negative consequences of NTFP harvesting on forest ecosystems and on NTFP species populations Within this wealth of information are rich accounts of NTFP use drawn from all parts of the American landscape from the Pacific Northwest to the Caribbean From honey production to a review of nontimber forest economies still active in the United States such as the Ojibway harvest of plants recounted here the book takes in the whole breadth of recent NTFP issues including ecological concerns associated with the expansion of NTFP markets and NTFP tenure issues on federally managed lands No other volume offers such a comprehensive overview of NTFPs in North America By examining all aspects of these products it contributes to the development of more sophisticated policy and management frameworks for not only ensuring their ongoing use but also protecting the future of our forests
