Thought Suppression:

Thought Suppression Eric Rassin, 2005-10-20 Is it possible to ban unwanted thoughts from consciousness According to the literature on thought suppression the answer is no In the 1980s Wegner and colleagues demonstrated that the average person cannot prevent a trivial thought like that of a polar bear from entering consciousness approximately seven times in a five minute period This experimental finding was followed by a substantial number of replications This book provides an up to date overview of the thought suppression literature First similarities and differences between suppression repression and dissociation are discussed Methodological issues are then considered Finally the clinical applications of the thought suppression literature are discussed Although there are numerous conditions to which the phenomenon of suppression can be applied obsession and traumatic recollection are the main applications In addition to offering an overview of the literature this book links the thought suppression paradigm to other research fields such as directed forgetting and repressive coping Furthermore it discusses the phenomenon of thought suppression in the light of broader theories such as the cognitive theory of obsession and the ego depletion hypothesis Clinical implications and directions for future research are offered Topics in Cognitive Psychology Serge P. Shohov, 2003 Cognitive psychology is concerned with several mental processes including those involved in perception attention learning memory problem solving decision making and the use of language Therefore it is very extensive and of great relevance to other areas of psychology This new series presents research on the leading edge of cognitive psychology Contents Preface The Structure and Measurements of Self Concept for University Students The Dynamics of Classroom and Cognitive Activity of Students Confirmatory Factor Analysis of the Wechsler Adult Intelligence Scale III WAIS III 1 2 and 4 Factor Models Prospective Memory Why do we Remember to Perform Intended Actions Gifted Brain and Twinning Integrative Review of the Recent Literature Developing Autobiographical Memory in the Cultural Contexts of Parent Child Reminiscing Thought Suppression in Phobia Success and Strategies Effects of Training on the Timing of Simple Repetitive Movements The Influence of Vocal and Instrumental Background Music on the Cognitive Performance of Introverts and Extraverts Reversal Learning in Concurrent Discriminations in Rats Index Concepts and Controversies in Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder Jonathan S. Abramowitz, Arthur C. Houts, 2006-11-22 Few syndromes in psychopathology generate as much popular curiosity and clinical exploration as does obsessive compulsive disorder OCD Since the 1970s research on OCD has increased exponentially Specific advances include an improved grasp of the heterogeneity of the disorder identification of putative subtyping schemes and the development of increasingly sophisticated theoretical models of the etiology and maintenance Perhaps most importantly research has led to advances in treatment and where as the first line therapies cognitive behavior therapy and serotonergic medication are not entirely effective for every sufferer they have transformed OCD from an unmanageable lifetime affliction into a treatable problem that need not reduce quality of life Despite the aforementioned advances there have emerged a number of sharp disagreements concerning OCD

Differences have surfaced over phenomenological issues etiological models and approaches to treatment and often occur but not exclusively along disciplinary lines between biologically oriented and cognitively behaviorally oriented authorities For example medical approaches posit that abnormal biological processes cause OCD whereas psychosocial formulations emphasize the role of learning and dysfunctional cognitions Yet because theoretical conjecture and empirical findings from within each tradition are typically addressed toward distinct and narrow audiences clinicians researchers and students with broad interests are hindered from gaining a clear grasp of the diverse and sometimes polarized perspectives

Reward Processing in Motivational and Affective Disorders Frank Ryan, Nikolina Skandali, 2016-10-11 Preferential reward processing is the hallmark of addiction where salient cues become overvalued and trigger compulsion In depression rewards appear to lose their incentive properties or become devalued In the context of schizophrenia aberrations in neural reward signalling are thought to contribute to the overvaluation of irrelevant stimuli on the one hand and the onset of negative symptoms on the other Accordingly reward processing has emerged as a key variable in contemporary evidence based diagnostic frameworks such as the Research Domain Criteria launched by the United States National Institute of Mental Health Delineation of the underlying mechanisms of aberrant or blunted reward processing can be of trans diagnostic importance across several neuropsychiatric disorders Reward processing can become automatic thus raising the question of cognitive control a core theme of this Topic which aims at justifying the necessity of reward processing as a potential therapeutic target in clinical settings Empirical and theoretical contributions on the following themes were expected to Explore new avenues of research by investigating the processing of rewards at the cognitive behavioral motivational neural systems and individual difference levels A developmental focus is promising in this regard probing the core processes that shape reward processing and thus subsequent liability to motivational and affective disorders Develop and refine conceptual models of reward processing from computational neuroscience Promote greater understanding and development of emergent therapeutic approaches such as cognitive bias modification and behavioural approach or avoidance training A key question is the feasibility of reversing or modifying maladaptive patterns of reward processing to therapeutic ends Refine and augment the evidential database for tried and tested therapies such as Contingency Management and Behavioral Activation by focusing on core cognitive processes mediating rewards Provide a potential dimensional approach for reward processing deficits that can be of trans diagnostic importance in clinically relevant disorders including depression and addiction Investigate the subjective experience of pleasure the hedonic aspect of reward seeking and consumption and how this can be distinguished from the motivational sometimes compulsive component of reward pursuit This promises more nuanced and effective interventions Depression for instance could be seen as the restricted pursuit of pleasure rather than blunted pleasure experience addiction can be viewed as accentuated drug seeking despite diminished consummatory pleasure This aims to place motivation centre stage in both scenarios emphasising the transdiagnostic theme of the Topic Temporal discounting of future rewards whereby smaller more immediate rewards are chosen even when significantly more valuable deferred rewards are available is another trans diagnostic phenomenon of interest in the in the present context Factors that influence this such as discounting of future reward are thought to reflect compulsion in the addictive context and hopelessness on the part of people experiencing depression The executive cognitive processes that regulate this decision making are of both scientific and clinical significance Empirical findings theoretical contributions or commentaries bearing on cognitive or executive control were therefore welcome
