

IN CONGRESS, July 4, 1776.

States of America

Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen united States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth a separate and equal station, it is their right, it is their duty, to declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Liberty.

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that even the most ardent Wishes for Reform in a Government are seldom attended to, until a long train of abuses, and usurpations, accumulating for many years, shall have occasioned a restless disposition to alter the existing Government, and the first steps toward that change, shall have been taken.

Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, and such has been the unity of their Sentiments in their Declaration of Independence, that they have united to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with Great Britain, and that they have assumed among the powers of the earth a separate and equal station.

In the Name, and in the Presence of the Supreme Judge of the World, we therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress assembled, solemnly publish and declare, that these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political Connection with them is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that as free, sovereign and independent States, they have full Power to do all those Acts and Things which Independent States may of Right do.

In Witness whereof, the Representatives of the said Colonies have hereunto set their hands and seals, the day and date above written.
