

SOLAR SYSTEM

CHART

Solar system : The solar system describes the Sun and all the bodies that orbit the Sun, including the planets—the eight planets, their 166 known moons, three dwarf planets (Ceres, Pluto, and Eris and their four known moons), asteroids, moons, meteoroids and comets. It also includes the gas and dust found in the space between larger bodies. Scientists think that the solar system formed from a rotating cloud of gas and dust. This surrounded the Sun when it formed about 5 billion years ago.

SUN

The Sun is a yellow dwarf star. It is the center of the solar system and contains 99.8% of the system's mass. It is a main sequence star, which means it is in the middle stage of its life cycle. The Sun's core is where nuclear fusion takes place, converting hydrogen into helium. This process releases a tremendous amount of energy in the form of light and heat. The Sun's surface is covered in a turbulent atmosphere of gas, with sunspots and solar flares being common features. The solar wind, a stream of charged particles, flows out from the Sun in all directions. The Sun's life span is estimated to be about 10 billion years in total.

MERCURY

Mercury is the smallest planet in the solar system. It is a terrestrial planet, meaning it has a rocky surface. Mercury is covered in a dense layer of dark, volcanic rock and is heavily cratered. It has a very thin atmosphere and a large iron core. The temperature on Mercury varies greatly, from extremely hot during the day to extremely cold at night. It is the only planet in the solar system that does not have any moons.

VENUS

Venus is the second planet from the Sun. It is a terrestrial planet with a thick, toxic atmosphere composed mostly of carbon dioxide. This atmosphere creates a powerful greenhouse effect, making Venus the hottest planet in the solar system. The surface is covered in a dense layer of volcanic rock and is shrouded in thick, yellowish clouds of sulfuric acid. Venus has a very slow rotation and no moons.

EARTH

Earth is the third planet from the Sun and the only planet known to support life. It is a terrestrial planet with a rocky surface and a thin atmosphere. The atmosphere is composed of nitrogen and oxygen, which allows for the existence of liquid water. Earth has a large, rocky moon and a complex system of continents, oceans, and weather patterns. The Earth's magnetic field protects the planet from harmful solar radiation.

MARS

Mars is the fourth planet from the Sun. It is a terrestrial planet with a reddish-orange surface, often called the "Red Planet". Mars has a thin atmosphere and a polar ice cap. It has two small, rocky moons, Phobos and Deimos. There is evidence of ancient water on Mars, including dried-up riverbeds and ice at the poles. Mars is the only planet in the solar system where humans have landed.

JUPITER

Jupiter is the fifth planet from the Sun and the largest planet in the solar system. It is a gas giant, meaning it is composed mostly of hydrogen and helium. Jupiter has a prominent band of clouds and a Great Red Spot, a massive storm that has been raging for centuries. It has a complex system of rings and many moons, including the four Galilean moons: Io, Europa, Ganymede, and Callisto.

SATURN

Saturn is the sixth planet from the Sun and the second largest planet in the solar system. It is a gas giant, composed mostly of hydrogen and helium. Saturn is famous for its prominent ring system, which is made of ice and rock. It has a complex system of moons, including the largest moon, Titan. Saturn has a long, tilted axis and a relatively slow rotation.

URANUS

Uranus is the seventh planet from the Sun. It is an ice giant, meaning it is composed mostly of water, ammonia, and methane. Uranus has a pale blue-green color and a complex system of rings and moons. It is the only planet in the solar system that rotates on its side. Uranus has a long, tilted axis and a relatively slow rotation.

NEPTUNE

Neptune is the eighth planet from the Sun. It is an ice giant, composed mostly of water, ammonia, and methane. Neptune has a deep blue color and a complex system of rings and moons. It is the only planet in the solar system that has a visible storm, the Great Dark Spot. Neptune has a long, tilted axis and a relatively slow rotation.

PLUTO

Pluto is the ninth planet from the Sun and the largest dwarf planet in the solar system. It is a rocky body with a thin atmosphere and a complex system of moons, including Charon. Pluto is located in the Kuiper Belt, a region of the solar system beyond the orbit of Neptune. It has a long, tilted axis and a relatively slow rotation.

ASTEROID

Asteroids are small, rocky bodies that orbit the Sun. They are found in the Asteroid Belt, a region between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter. Asteroids are composed of various materials, including rock, metal, and ice. Some asteroids have moons of their own. The largest asteroid is Ceres, which is also classified as a dwarf planet.

COMET

Comets are small, icy bodies that orbit the Sun. They are found in the Oort Cloud, a region of the solar system far beyond the orbit of Neptune. Comets are composed of ice, dust, and rock. When a comet approaches the Sun, it develops a long, glowing tail of gas and dust. The largest comet is Halley's Comet, which is visible from Earth every 76 years.

METEOROID

Meteoroids are small, rocky or metallic bodies that orbit the Sun. They are found in the Asteroid Belt and the Kuiper Belt. Meteoroids are composed of various materials, including rock, metal, and ice. When a meteoroid enters the Earth's atmosphere, it becomes a meteor, which is often seen as a bright streak of light in the sky. If a meteoroid survives the journey and lands on the ground, it is called a meteorite.
