

A diagram illustrating the concept of a warm inversion layer trapping sound. The top portion of the image shows a dark, stormy sky with a bright lightning bolt striking down. Below the lightning, a horizontal orange band represents the warm inversion layer. Below this layer, the sky is a lighter blue, and a city skyline is visible at the bottom. A central circle contains the text "Lightning produces thunder". Four red arrows, each with a series of parallel lines behind it representing sound waves, originate from the lightning bolt and point downwards towards the city skyline. The text "Cooler air" is written on the left side of the diagram.
