University Technology Transfer Gideon Markman,Peter T. Gianiodis,David B. Balkin,Phillip Phan,2013 This study examines factors that affect the commercialization of university based innovations It was hypothesized that successful university based technology transfer royalty revenues and new venture creation is related to licensing strategies the configuration of the technology transfer office and the application of monetary incentives To avoid common method bias data were collected from four different sources including from AUTM Licensing Surveys 1999 2000 interviews with 127 technology transfer directors and for convergent validity from web based searches of each research institution and the US Patent and Trademark Office Findings revealed that licensing strategies and technology transfer office configuration are significantly related to successful technology transfers In addition the practice of sharing licensing revenues with a scientist s academic department and technology office directors pay levels were positively related to technology transfers However sharing licensing revenues with scientists counter to predictions generated a negative relationship with technology transfers We conclude with a discussion that deepens our understanding of the determinants of

A Macro Perspective on Technology Transfer Allan Reddy, 1996-08-30 Dr Reddy points out that the key to economic success particularly for the less developed countries of the world is technology but only when properly applied Despite years of help through technology transfer however many LDCs are still impoverished This leads him to conclude that either the wrong technologies were transferred or the right ones were not transferred His book thus focuses on ways in which LDCs can improve their economic growth through technology transfer arguing that it is the assimilation of technology into their socioeconomic and cultural structures that is critical to their economic development not the indiscriminate borrowing from advanced nations In doing so Dr Reddy presents a behavioral model which proves that technology absorption is just as if not more important than a simple transfer process A challenging research based discussion for academics in economics business sociology marketing and management and for business and government policymakers worldwide Dr Reddy introduces the concepts related to technology transfer and discusses the major participants in the worldwide transfer enterprise He presents barriers and ways to overcome them in technology transferral explores the ethical dimensions and then lays out his technology transfer assimilation model He applies the model to a specific and representative developing country India and ends with a discussion of conclusions that can be drawn from it His three appendixes elaborate on the need for and methods to transfer technology to LDCs provide ways to analyze the costs and present a model of reciprocal distribution that may benefit both the donor and the recipient country in the transfer process International Technology Transfer United States International Trade Commission,1979 Licensing and Technology Transfer Gene Tze Tien,2004 Licensing agreements have the potential to reveal previously unobserved insights into technology transfer Technology transfer has mainly been a theoretical topic relying on limited empirical data to draw hypotheses or tests By utilizing a privately held database of complete full text technology licensing agreements collected from public U S sources I explore technology transfer with licensing contracts as their proxy The objective of this thesis is to develop a data driven foundation for analyzing technology transfer
