The Male:

Manliness and the Male Novelist in Victorian Literature Andrew Dowling, 2017-03-02 The purpose of this book is to address two principal questions Was the concept of masculinity a topic of debate for the Victorians and Why is Victorian literature full of images of male deviance when Victorian masculinity is defined by discipline In his introduction Dowling defines Victorian masculinity in terms of discipline He then addresses the central question of why an official ideal of manly discipline in the nineteenth century co existed with a literature that is full of images of male deviance In answering this question he develops a notion of hegemonic deviance whereby a dominant ideal of masculinity defines itself by what it is not Dowling goes on to examine the fear of effeminacy facing Victorian literary men and the strategies used to combat these fears by the nineteenth century male novelist In later chapters concentrating on Dickens and Thackeray he examines how the male novelist is defined against multiple images of unmanliness These chapters illustrate the investment made by men in constructing male others those sources of difference that are constantly produced and then crushed from within gender divide By analysing how Victorian literary texts both reveal and reconcile historical anxieties about the meaning of manliness Dowling argues that masculinity is a complex construction rather than a natural given
