William Christenberry:

Christenberry Reconstruction Trudy Wilner Stack, William Christenberry, Allen Tullos, 1996 Thirty five year retrospective representing all major aspects of Christenberry s art including The Klan Room Page 204 William Christenberry J. Richard Gruber, 1996 Throughout The Early Years Christenberry s work is presented as part of an evolutionary series of developments that began with Christenberry s immersion in the Abstract Expressionist philosophies and techniques taught at the University of Alabama during his years as a student there 1954 1959 and continued through his abandonment of painting on canvas 1964 and his inclusion of signs and found objects in the three dimensional constructions he created in Memphis 1964 1968 These constructions marked by the artist s sense of dynamic composition and gestural brushwork and reflecting his awareness of the combines of Robert Rauschenberg and the developing Pop Art sensibility have never been examined prior to this book As J Richard Gruber convincingly demonstrates Christenberry s work evolved in response both to the most advanced art movements of the times and to the changing social and cultural landscape around him William Christenberry (Signed Edition) William Christenberry, 2006-06 Since the early 1960s William Christenberry has plumbed the regional identity of the American South through his work in Hale County Alabama where he was raised Although he is most often associated with and recognized as a pioneer in American color photography he also works in an unorthodox mix of media that includes sculpture drawing painting and found object assemblage This comprehensive survey of his work considers all those practices together and in doing so gives readers access to the full scope and complexity of his vision In every medium Christenberry s theme is unified the history the story of place is at the heart of his project His poetic documentation of vernacular architecture signage and landscape captures moments of quiet beauty in a sometimes mythic terrain that with its worn iconography and buildings turned ramshackle evokes the form and power of the passage of time Since relocating to Washington D C in 1968 Christenberry has dutifully returned to photograph the same locations annually the green barn the palmist building the Bar B Q Inn fulfilling a personal ritual and documenting the physical changes wrought by the passing of a year More than half the photographs in this comprehensive survey are previously unpublished including new and vintage images and a stunning selection of never before seen Kodachrome work An essay by Walter Hopps the artist s lifelong friend and the founding director of the Menil Collection who passed away in 2005 will draw attention as well William Christenberry, W/P. William Christenberry, 2005 William Christenberry William Christenberry, 2008 Somehow I feel like I can reach out and touch memory Somehow it is malleable you can manipulate it form it shape it It certainly can shape you William Christenberry Working from Memory is a collection of stories by the renowned visual artist William Christenberry Christenberrys writings emerge from the literary tradition of the American Deep South and yet can clearly be seen as an integral part of his oeuvre With their lucid lyrical qualities they illuminate personal experience against a backdrop of the important political and cultural aspects of the Southern States William Christenberry , William Christenberry J. Richard Gruber, 2000 J Richard Gruber's latest monograph on William Christenberry explores the artist's work and how it relates to the cultural production of previous generations of Christenberrys. The book adds to the body of art historical texts concerning itself not only with the work of William Christenberry but also with art from the American South and Southern American culture.

William Christenberry William Christenberry, Susanne Lange, 2002 Essays by Susanne Lange, Claudia Schubert and Allan Tullos William Christenberry William Christenberry, Corcoran Gallery of Art, 1973

William Christenberry, 2013 William Christenberry is firmly established as a contemporary American master photographer but no comprehensive overview of his diverse talents is currently in print. This 260-page volume, the largest Christenberry overview yet published, corrects this lacuna, offering a thematic survey of his half-century-long career. It is composed of 13 sections, each devoted to a particular series or theme: the wooden sculptures of Southern houses, cafes, and shops; the early black and white Walker Evans-influenced photographs of Southern interiors taken in Alabama and Mississippi in the early 60s; documentations of Ku Klux Klan meeting houses and rallies from the mid-1960s; color photographs of tenant houses in Alabama from 1961 to 1978; signs in landscapes ranging from handwritten gas station signs to Klan and corporate signs; graves which, through Christenberry's lens, emerge as a kind of folk art; churches in Alabama, Delaware, and Mississippi taken between the mid-1960s and the 80s; Alabama street scenes in towns such as Demopolis, Marion, and Greensboro; street scenes in Tennessee, mostly Memphis; Southern landscapes, gas stations, trucks, and cars in Alabama; and a selection from Christenberry's famous series of buildings to which he returns annually, photographing them over several decades: the palmist building, the Underground Nite Club, Coleman's Cafe, the Bar B Q Inn, the Green Warehouse, and the Christenberry family home near Stewart, Alabama. William Christenberry, born 1936, has been a professor at the Corcoran College of Art and Design, Washington, D.C., since 1968. His work has been the subject of numerous solo exhibitions over the last 40 years and can be found in numerous permanent collections, including those of the Smithsonian American Art Museum, Washington, D.C.; The Museum of Modern Art and Whitney Museum of American Art, New York; San Francisco Museum of Modern Art; and the Center for Creative Photography, Tucson. His work was the subject of a major year-long solo exhibition at the Smithsonian American Art Museum in 2006.

Christenberry's poetic elucidation of Southern vernacular landscape and architecture using the media of photography, drawing, painting, collage, sculpture, and miniaturization reveals the vital importance of geography and place, real and imaginary, as central to his life's work.
