String Figures:

String Figures Caroline Furness Jayne, 1906      String Figures as Mathematics? Eric Vandendriessche, 2015-01-02

This book addresses the mathematical rationality contained in the making of string figures. It does so by using interdisciplinary methods borrowed from anthropology, mathematics history, and philosophy of mathematics. The practice of string figure making has long been carried out in many societies and particularly in those of oral tradition. It consists in applying a succession of operations to a string knotted into a loop, mostly using the fingers and sometimes the feet, the wrists, or the mouth. This succession of operations is intended to generate a final figure. The book explores different modes of conceptualization of the practice of string figure making and analyses various source material through these conceptual tools. It looks at research by mathematicians as well as ethnographical publications and personal fieldwork findings in the Chaco, Paraguay, and in the Trobriand Islands, Papua New Guinea, which all give evidence of the rationality that underlies this activity. It concludes that the creation of string figures may be seen as the result of intellectual processes involving the elaboration of algorithms and concepts such as operation, sub-procedure, iteration, and transformation.

In addition to basic instructions on how to get started, this guide features brief accounts of each figure's historical background. They include Kidnapped Baby and Broken Home Mended Home from Hawaii; A Flock of Birds and Old Man Chewing from the Solomon Islands; and the Australian Setting Sun. From the Congo come Leopard's Mouth; Rubber Band from Tibet; and from India, Scissors. Other figures spotlight the traditions of North America's Navajo and Kwakiutl peoples and natives of Brazil, Guyana, and Argentina. A great travel pastime and on-the-go activity, making string figures is a delightful, inexpensive, and easily acquired hobby.

tacking and a tactical methodology Louisa Bufardecì, 2024-10-02. How can artists and others who find themselves in positions of privilege think differently about the way they do what they do in order to create the conditions for better, more just relations to flourish? Finding an answer to that question is at the heart of this book. After critiquing the relationship between contemporary art, race, and privilege, the author brings together First Nation and feminist philosophies of relationality, the game of string figuring, and her own history as an artist to propose an alternate methodology that puts relation at the centre of practice. She introduces the multivalent concept of tacking a movement at an oblique angle to prevailing winds in order to traverse the waters of contemporary art to challenge power and create a more just future

String Figures and How to Make Them Caroline F. Jayne, This book may be regarded as an introduction to the study of String Figures games which are widespread among primitive peoples and played by weaving on the hands a single loop of string in order to produce intricate patterns supposed to represent certain familiar objects I have gathered together the facts already known concerning these games and adding my own studies and the unpublished records of other observers I have here described and illustrated the methods whereby about one hundred string figures are made My purpose has been twofold to interest other students in the subject in order that additional figures and their methods may be collected among various tribes and races and to reach a still larger public that more people may share in the fascinations of the games themselves The games are certainly fascinating appealing as they do to young and to old and to those debarred from all pastimes demanding physical exertion Moreover they are not unduly difficult and capable as they are of infinite variations their charm ought to be inexhaustible
