use of mobile technologies or Web 2.0 tools and to change the way we think about using technology with kids. This book gives readers lots of information ammunition to go out and make things happen with their cell phone, laptop, MP3 player, or digital camera.

April DeGennaro, Gifted Education Teacher, Fayette County Board of Education, Fayetteville, GA. A foundational guide for integrating mobile technologies into your classroom. Writing for educators who want to use 21st century technologies to help deliver relevant classroom instruction.

Susan Brooks Young examines inexpensive hardware already used by many students, explores free Web 2.0 tools such as social networking sites and virtual worlds, and sheds light on both common objections and changing points of view about using mobile technologies for instructional support.

Emphasizing digital citizenship, the ethical use of technology, this invaluable resource identifies specific Web 2.0 tools for supporting collaboration and communication in K-12 settings. Strategies for practical applications. A decision-making model for selecting appropriate mobile technologies and Web 2.0 tools for classroom use. Recommended books, Web sites, and online reports and articles for reference.

Teaching With the Tools Kids Really Use gives educators a solid approach for capitalizing on readily available technologies and opens up rich teaching and learning opportunities for today's classrooms.

Teaching with Technology, Priscilla Norton, Karin M. Wiburg, 2003. The distinctive characteristic of TEACHING WITH TECHNOLOGY, Second Edition is its clear correlation between theory and practice. This text focuses on ways to use technology to foster learning in K-12 classrooms instead of presenting the mechanics of computer operation. Norton and Wiburg's chapters are not based on computer applications; they are based instead on how technology can support student acquisition of literacy content, knowledge, problem solving, participating in communities, and student utilization of information and systems of assessment.

Disruptive Classroom Technologies, Sonny Magana, 2017-05-04. Timely and powerful, this book offers a new framework to elevate instructional practices with technology and maximize student learning. The T3 Framework helps teachers categorize students' learning as translational, transformational, or transcendent, sorting through the low-impact applications to reach high-impact usage of technologies. Teachers and leaders will find examples of technology use at the translational, transformational, and transcendent levels. Activities, guides, and prompts for deeper learning that move technology use to higher levels of the T3 Framework. Evaluative rubrics to self-assess current technology use, establish meaningful goals, and track progress towards those goals.

Technology in Education, Austin Carlson, 2016. Technology can be a powerful tool for transforming learning. It can help affirm and advance relationships between educators and students, reinvent our approaches to learning and collaboration, shrink long-standing equity and accessibility gaps, and adapt learning experiences to meet the needs of all learners. Our schools, community colleges, and universities should be incubators of exploration and invention. Educators should be collaborators in learning, seeking new knowledge and constantly acquiring new skills alongside their students. Education leaders should set a vision for creating learning experiences that provide the right tools and supports for all learners to thrive. However, to realize fully the benefits of technology in our education system and provide authentic learning experiences educators need to use technology effectively in their practice Furthermore education stakeholders should commit to working together to use technology to improve American education These stakeholders include leaders teachers faculty and other educators researchers policymakers funders technology developers community members and organisations and learners and their families This book reviews the role of technology in education as well as building technology infrastructure for learning
