Viking Circle:

The Viking Circle Colin Simpson, 1967 Vikings in North America Graeme Davis, 2011-05-23 It was the Vikings not Christopher Columbus who made the first European discovery of America It was the Vikings not the Pilgrim Fathers who were the first Europeans settlers in America and it was probably the Vikings who first used the name America Around a thousand years ago the Vikings crossed the North Atlantic and established their settlements on the American continent Yet today both Europe and North America treat the Vikings in North America as if it were no more than a curious footnote to their histories as if the Vikings made just a handful of voyages with little impact This book challenges this outdated view We now know that the Vikings travelled widely in North America both on the east coast and in the high Arctic and Hudson Bay Today we realise that Viking presence in America lasted nearly five centuries and its legacy inspired much of the post Columban exploration of North America
