Visual Persuasion:

Visual Persuasion Paul Messaris, 1997 Paul Messaris is an extremely thoughtful commentator on the world of visuals He has studied advertising visuals for many years and his insights are always stimulating and sometimes even controversial This book makes an important contribution to the literature in two fields visual communication and advertising I recommend it for faculty and students as well as professionals in the advertising field Sandra Moriarty Professor University of Colorado With an informal writing style and examples both thoughtful and illustrative Paul Messaris in his Visual Persuasion leads the reader through the often complex field of visual literacy related to advertising images with high style and intellect When so much information is conveyed through quickly edited and carefully controlled mass media images Visual Persuasion is a vital book toward understanding the impact on individuals cultures and society of persuasive visual messages Paul Martin Lester Ph D Author of Visual Communication with Messages A smartly reasoned and elegantly written treatment of visual argumentation authored by one of America's most respected authorities on visual communication James Lull The pictures in TV commercials magazine ads and other forms of advertising often convey meanings that cannot be expressed as well or at all through words or music Visual Persuasion is an exploration of these unique aspects of advertising By virtue of their ability to simulate the appearance of the physical world pictures can become surrogate objects of desire or other emotions which ads subsequently associate with products By exploiting viewers assumptions of a direct automatic connection between photography and reality images can serve as proof of advertising claims Because of the implicit nature of visual argumentation and the relative lack of social accountability that images enjoy in comparison with words pictures can be used to make advertising claims that would be unacceptable if they were spelled out verbally Using these characteristics of visual persuasion as a starting point this important book analyzes a variety of commercial political and social issue advertisements A separate chapter examines the role of pictures in cross cultural advertising Visual Persuasion is recommended for upper level undergraduate students and graduate students in communication and media studies It also contains insights that will be valuable to students in courses in cultural studies sociology anthropology and advertising

Scott,Rajeev Batra,2003-04-02 This volume synthesizes and advances existing knowledge of consumer response to visuals Representing an interdisciplinary perspective contributors include scholars from the disciplines of communication psychology and marketing The book begins with an overview section intended to situate the reader in the discourse The overview describes the state of knowledge in both academic research and actual practice and provides concrete sources for scholars to pursue Written in a non technical language this volume is divided into four sections

Image and Response illustrates the difficulty encountered even in investigating the basic influences processes and effects of mere exposure to imagery Image and Word presents instances in which the line between words and pictures is blurred such as the corporate logo which is often pictorial in nature but communicates on an abstract level usually attributed to words Image and the Ad contributes to our appreciation for the exquisite variations among advertising texts and the resultant variability in response not only to different ads but among different viewers of the same ad Image and Object carries the inquiry of visual response over the bridge toward object interaction Having traveled a path that has gone from the precise working of the brain in processing visual stimuli all the way to the history of classical architecture readers of this volume will have a new respect for the complexity of human visual response and the research that is trying to explain it It will be of interest to those involved in consumer behavior consumer psychology advertising marketing and visual communication

The Power of Glamour Virginia Postrel,2013-11-05 In provocative detail with more than one hundred illustrations critically acclaimed author Virginia Postrel separates glamour from glitz revealing what qualities make a person an object a setting or an experience glamorous What is it that creates that pleasurable pang of desire the feeling of if only If only I could wear those clothes belong to that group drive that car live in that house be or be with that person Postrel identifies the three essential elements in all forms of glamour and explains how they work to create a distinctive sensation of projection and yearning The Power of Glamour is the very first book to explain what glamour really is not just style or a personal quality but a phenomenon that reveals our inner lives and shapes our decisions large and small By embodying the promise of a different and better self in different and better circumstances glamour stokes ambition and nurtures hope even as it fosters sometimes dangerous illusions From vacation brochures to military recruiting ads from the Chrysler Building to the iPad from political utopias to action heroines Postrel argues that glamour is a seductive cultural force Its magic stretches beyond the stereotypical spheres of fashion or film influencing our decisions about what to buy where to live which careers to pursue where to invest and how to vote The result is myth shattering a revelatory theory that explains how glamour became a powerful form of nonverbal persuasion one that taps into our most secret dreams and deepest yearnings to influence our everyday choices

Visual Persuasion in Mass Media: A Computational Framework for Understanding Visual Communication Jungseock Joo, 2015 Visuals play a vital role in human communication in the modern media landscape but there have been little progress on a systematic analysis on massive visual data In this dissertation I introduce a novel computational paradigm that brings advanced techniques in computer vision and machine learning to bear on research questions in media studies and social science I first examine how the news media leverage photographs to visually persuade their audiences I developed a computational model that can predict the viewers emotional perceptions from politicians photographs in the mass media by inferring hidden messages and communicative intents embodied in images I applied the model to track the visual favorability of the U S President in the mass media revealing strong correlations between the visuals from the mass media and the public opinion Secondly I investigate the role of facial appearance in social perception and trait inference and its impacts to real world social events such as elections The result shows that the automated trait recognition from the facial appearance of politicians predicts the major election outcomes in the U S up to 70% accuracy These approaches extend existing theories and behavioral studies to large scale analysis demonstrate the utility of computer vision and machine learning as novel research tools in computational communication science and suggest a new area of research for computer vision which goes beyond traditional syntactical scene understanding

American Museums and the Persuasive Impulse J. Donald Ragsdale, 2009 In American Museums and the Persuasive Impulse Professor Ragsdale assesses American museums as means of visual persuasion He demonstrates that museums their contents and their manners of display are as capable of influencing visitors as speeches or advertisements and that an awareness of their social influence provides an insight into the cultural roles of museums The book considers a diverse array of museums ranging from such national cultural icons as the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Art Institute to such city museums as the Philadelphia Museum of Art and the Los Angeles Country Museum of Art and includes separate chapters on museums devoted to modern and contemporary art and to the specialized collections of individual connoisseurs In addition to these primarily art museums Professor Ragsdale assesses museums devoted to collections such as the National Air and Space Museum and to commemoration and remembrance such as the National World War II Museum and the US Holocaust Memorial Museum American Museums and the Persuasive Impulse makes an important contribution to the theory of persuasion and to visual communication art history and museology It utilizes a theory of visual signs based on the semiotic theory of C S Peirce In so doing it demonstrates that museum buildings the art and other objects contained within them and the spaces used for display may all be thought of in terms of means of social influence Proceedings of the 26th Euromicro Conference Ferenc Vajda,2000 Life as an Experiment Zdenek Penkala,2007 We cannot live a full life unless we know who we are unless we know the essence of our being The sciences which have been immensely helpful in the way in which we live our lives have been helpless when it comes to telling us how our life should be lived and what its meaning is Accepting any philosophical or religious belief on the other hand limits our freedom to learn directly from personal knowledge of reality as any preconceived ideas do not only alter its perception but limit the spectrum of possibilities to which our reason can be applied To those who do not surrender their right to decide for themselves what reality is life offers a unique opportunity to apply their insights both in the worlds within and without and either validates or disproves their findings If they are true to themselves the continuous feedback life offers will reveal to them unique characteristics of our mind which are otherwise limited by its own beliefs
