Training For Environmental Groups:

Training for Environmental Groups J. Clarence Davies, Frances H. Irwin, Barbara K. Rodes, 1984 This report examines the need for and resources available to environmental and conservation groups to develop skills in raising money and recruiting new members managing an organization communicating with the press and analyzing policy issues Data were obtained from 225 questionnaires returned by representative groups 411 were mailed an extensive literature search interviews with executives in major environmental groups and providers of training and a meeting of the heads of university environmental studies programs Findings indicate that the needs for management fund raising membership recruitment and policy development skills are currently unmet For example half the groups surveyed did not know how to meet the training needs they identified Based on these and other findings the establishment of a network to identify and link the needs of diverse environmental groups and the increasing number of training resources is recommended In addition a pilot program in policy training funded by private sources regular meetings of deans of environmental studies programs and internships are also recommended The report provides tables with detailed breakdowns of the results by size of group and budget and discusses the major training resources and organizations JN World Directory of Environmental Organizations Thaddeus C.

Trzyna, Elizabeth Margold, Julia K. Osborn, 1996 This is a guide to organizations worldwide concerned with conservation and natural resources The directory features descriptions of over 2600 organizations in over 200 countries profiles of over 170 intergovernmental agencies and UN programmes descriptions of over 400 international NGOs over 2000 national government and non governmental organizations full addresses and contact numbers and a bibliography of data sources

ECOCONSCIOUS EXPLORATIONS-A MULTIDISCIPLINARY APPROACH Dr. Mazahar Ahmed Farooqui, 2022-04-07

Environmental Health Perspectives , 1993 The Green Agenda in American Politics Robert J. Duffy, 2003 Organizations such as the Sierra Club and Friends of the Earth are familiar to anyone with an interest in environmental protection As activist groups they played by the same rules for years But in 1994 the rules changed With the Republican takeover of Congress environmental groups faced sweeping changes in federal policies that threatened the enforcement of environmental laws As these organizations intensified their efforts to meet these challenges they also altered their electoral strategies and political spending patterns This book traces those actions and shows what they mean for the future of environmentalism in the political arena While environmental advocacy groups have become bigger and better funded in recent years so have the corporate interests that compete with them for the attention of public and politicians The Green Agenda in American Politics offers a new look at environmental advocacy that focuses on contemporary lobbying electioneering and agenda setting in this new context Drawing on interviews with activists from a wide range of organizations Robert Duffy describes what environmental groups actually do when lobbying officials or the public He examines activity at both national and state levels to emphasize their growing use of websites email and action alert networks to conduct more sophisticated grassroots campaigns and he shows how they are devoting more funds to unregulated forms of spending such as independent expenditure issue advocacy advertising and public education campaigns Duffy also tracks emerging trends in interest group politics and provides an overview of activism through the early 1990s He then documents the emergence of more aggressive action after 1994 such as providing campaign services to candidates and mounting voter registration drives He also shows how state and local groups have begun to play more important roles in the wake of the rollback of federal environmental regulations Brimming with new insights into interest group lobbies in general and contemporary environmental groups in particular Duffy s book opens a new window on the influence of Big Money in the supposedly democratic electoral process

Safeguarding the Environment in Mining Development Projects Dr. Eugene H. Shannon, 2018-11-16 Safeguarding the Environment in Mining Development gives a description of the role the extractive industry plays in the economic sector of most developing countries It also describes the activities of transnational corporations TNCs in this sector Topics explored include the impacts on the economy employment generation technology transfer and environmental damages as a result of poor mitigation measures to address externalities as a result of improper effluent disposal This manual book further indicates that TNCs must come to realize that environmental regulations should not only become a payment part of the business climate of industrialized countries but must also be a part of the developing countries and that in the long run cooperation is more productive than opposition The author a professor of geological and environmental sciences also emphasizes that cooperative or bilateral efforts by both TNCs and governments of developing countries are absolutely necessary for the effectiveness of safeguarding the environment
