Vik Muniz:

Artist File Vik Muniz, 1970 Imaginaria Stéphane Ibars, 2019-10-02 As part of Grand Arles Express with which the Lambert Collection has been associated since its inception in 2016 the famous Brazilian artist Vik Muniz returns to the papal city eight years after his major solo show to present Imaginaria a series of works that have never been seen in Europe Exhibited at the Lambert Collection it comprises fifteen photographs featuring saints as depicted by great artists from Simon Vouet's Saint Agnes to Philippe de Champaigne's Saint Augustine and Jose de Ribera's Saint Sebastian In this new series Muniz continues his exploration of the fascination with saints through the history of their representation in art and consequently the relationship between art works and the idea of the sacred Composed of installations using everyday objects in incongruous situations wire sugar ketchup toys and cut out magazines Vik Muniz's photography reproduces images from collective memory and questions the notions of originality and copies By audaciously re-appropriating icons of art history and the media world the artist proposes a new relationship to images whose meaning and originality seems to have been exhausted by their reproduction and global diffusion Vik Muniz Show Arthur Ollman, 2016 Vik Muniz is celebrated for his joyful quirky dark and occasionally mind boggling work that riffs on popular photographic imagery referencing social icons and cultural realities and juxtaposing these themes in fascinating ways This book features an extraordinary selection of works that span Muniz's entire career more than 150 colour illustrations display the enormous range of Muniz's work and the disorienting and expansive logic of his world International icon Elizabeth Taylor is portrayed with diamonds with as much reverence as Brazilian landfill workers whose portraits are created from the trash they collect The Mona Lisa is recreated in peanut butter and jelly Artist Jackson Pollock is depicted in his studio in a work made entirely out of chocolate syrup Vik Muniz Lilly and Yoel Moshe Elstein Multi-purpose gallery. you might certainly feel as though you have experienced it exclusively through the space of other people's images. Vik Muniz's series Postcards from Nowhere grapples with how through photographs we have come to see and understand distant yet iconic sites we may never actually view with our own eyes. The images we hold in our heads are an assemblage, notes Muniz. They are an amalgam of every image of those locations that we have ever seen. More critically, the series serves as an homage not just to the quasi-obsolete artifact of the picture postcard but to a way of life that has now been put in sharp relief. Muniz's images, created out of collaged pieces of vintage postcards from the artist's personal collection, materialize the experience and longing of travel, triangulating between the traveler, a distant location, and the recipient who increasingly remains at home. Volume I presents thirty-two single postcards displaying each of the images in the series. Volume II presents a series of thirty-six postcards that when assembled can be viewed as a single large-scale work of 30 x 40 inches. The process of assembling the larger single image is akin to the original act of collage or like that of assembling a mosaic crafted from disparate pieces that have traveled from afar but when brought together conjure something that is larger, more complete than any individual element could be on its own.

Vik Muniz Vik Muniz, 2002. Exhibition of works by Muniz after Piranesi and Rembrandt photographs of earthworks. Vik Muniz Vik Muniz, 2006. Vik Muniz Vik Muniz, Charles Stainback, Mark Alice Durant, 1998. Vik Muniz works with the syntax of photography but his images are not simply photographic. As Vince Aletti has pointed out in the Village Voice, Muniz has teased the medium mercilessly and with an infectious glee. He makes pictures of pictures, sly punning documents that subvert photography by forcing it to record not the natural world but a fiction, a simulation. Muniz's pictures are illusions that draw from the language of visual culture but they twist and redefine our perception of both the commonplace and the fantastic. Muniz's images humorously as well as critically challenge our abilities to discern fact from fiction, reality from illusion. Utilizing a panoply of unorthodox materials: granulated sugar, tomato sauce, chocolate syrup, a 16,000-yard piece of sewing thread, and soil, Muniz first creates an image, sculpturally manipulates it, then photographs it. Whether a portrait, a landscape, or an iconic image from history, Muniz's images are never what they seem. This book, the artist's first monograph, was produced in conjunction with Muniz's one-person traveling exhibition.

The Gastronomica Reader Darra Goldstein, 2010-02-21. Described in the 2008 Saveur 100 as "At the top of our bedside reading pile since its inception in 2001, the award-winning Gastronomica: The Journal of Food and Culture is a quarterly feast of truly exceptional writing on food. Designed both to entertain and to provoke, The Gastronomica Reader now offers a sumptuous sampling from the journal's pages, including essays, poetry, interviews, memoirs, and an outstanding selection of the artwork that has made Gastronomica so distinctive. In words and images, it takes us around the globe through time and into a dazzling array of cultures, investigating topics from early hominid cooking to Third Reich caterers to the Shiite clergy under Ayatollah Khomeini, who deemed Iranian caviar fit for consumption under Islamic law. Informed throughout by a keen sense of the pleasures of eating, tasting, and sharing food, The Gastronomica Reader will inspire readers to think seriously, widely, and deeply about what goes onto their plates Gastronomica is a winner of the Utne Reader's Independent Press Award for Social Cultural Coverage

Locating Renaissance Art Carol M. Richardson, 2007-01-01 Renaissance art history is traditionally identified with Italian centers of production and Florence in particular. Instead, this book explores the dynamic interchange between European artistic centers and artists and the trade in works of art. It also considers the impact of differing locations on art and artists and some of the economic, political, and cultural factors crucial to the emergence of an artistic center. During c. 1420-1520, no city or court could succeed in isolation, and so artists operated within a network of interests and local and international identities. The case studies presented in this book portray the Renaissance as an exciting international phenomenon with cities and courts inextricably bound together in a web of economic and political interests.

Medea's Long Shadow in Postcolonial Contexts Ana Filipa Prata, Rodrigo Verano, 2024-06-10 This interdisciplinary volume explores the ancient Greek myth of Medea and its global analogues found in other mythic and folk tales of deadly exiled women such as those of La Malinche and La Llorona, examining the connections between these figures and their depictions from antiquity to modernity. The book considers the figure of the foreign woman, her exile, fratricide, and infanticide in its ancient Greek form and in global postcolonial receptions in a range of media including drama, film, novels, and the visual arts. The chapters illuminate the contradictions of considering the classical Medea as a central reference point for analysis of other female figures from peripheral territories while simultaneously acknowledging the insights that such comparisons can yield. Emphasizing the ways in which Medea's seditious nature enables the establishment of an extensive and heterogeneous intertextual network with other mythic characters who represent a similarly disruptive role in their specific local historical and cultural contexts, the book argues for a comparative analysis that is equally attentive to myths and folk tales from all regions. These essays by scholars of classics, comparative and world literatures, and postcolonial studies represent a plurality of perspectives from different academic contexts in Africa, Latin America, North America, and Europe, and examine how different cultures have depicted women, foreigners, crime, and abjection. The foundations of Greek myth and subsequently of the classical tradition itself are interrogated from a postcolonial perspective. In tracing the portrayals of Medea and other mythic women through the overlapping features of different female characters and plots and intertwining local cultural and literary materials with broader debates, this volume challenges Eurocentric narratives of power and cultural domination and works to decentralize the discussion of Medea from the exclusive domain of classical studies. Medea's Long Shadow in Postcolonial Contexts will be of interest to students and scholars working on Greek tragedy and its reception, as well as to those studying postcolonial and global approaches to literature, culture, and gender studies.
