Visual Arts Research, 1990 The Cultural Post, 1982 Visual Arts in the Twentieth Century Edward Lucie-Smith, 1996 In this history of Modernism Edward Lucie Smith examines the historical social and intellectual contexts that have underlain individual creativity The book s structure is strictly chronological rather than thematic in order that readers can find affinities between approaches to art normally regarded as separate such as Pop Art and Conceptualism The main topics architecture painting sculpture photography appear within each chapter in a fixed order Catalog of Copyright Entries, Third Series, 1976 The Visual Arts in Post-Historical Perspective Arthur C. Danto, 1998-11-03 This essays explore how conceptions of art and resulting historical narratives differ according to culture Visual and Performing Arts Framework, 2004 Mnemosyne Mario Praz, 1974 The classic study of the timeless relationship between literature and the visual arts In his search for a common link between literature and the visual arts Mario Praz draws on the abundant evidence of mutual understanding and correspondence they have long shared Praz explains that within literature each epoch has its peculiar handwriting or handwritings which if one could interpret them would reveal a character even a physical appearance and while these characteristics belong to the general style of a given period the personality of the writer does not fail to pierce through Praz contends that something similar occurs in art He shows how the likeness between the arts within various periods of history can ultimately be traced to structural similarities that arise out of the characteristic way in which the people of a certain epoch see and memorize facts aesthetically Mnemosyne at once the goddess of memory and the mother of the muses presides over this view of the arts In illustrating her influence Praz ranges widely through Western sources providing an incomparable tour of the literary and pictorial arts

Rethinking the Forms of Visual Expression Robert Sowers, 1990 Robert Sowers begins this book by questioning our conception of the visual arts painting sculpture and architecture as autonomous archetypal entities that can be defined independent of one another in terms of their materials and techniques He cuts through the limits of categorization we have come to accept to lay the groundwork for a coherent theory of the relation between the visual arts He proposes that we treat the pictorial the sculptural and the architectural not as palpable physical things but as activities the basic forms of visual expression employed to create such distinct artifacts as paintings statues and buildings By defining the expressive function of each art Sowers helps us to understand what we mean when we speak of the sculptural qualities of architecture or the pictorial qualities of sculpture The world of visual art then is a structured whole a world in which the arts can meet merge with and mutually reinforce or swear at one another often in unexpected yet compelling ways

A Theology of Artistic Sensibilities John Dillenberger, 2004-10-19 For most of history argues John Dillenberger the visual arts were for better or worse part of the very fabric of the life and thought of the church But with the Reformation and the Counter Reformation a major change took place Protestant rejection of the visual was matched in Roman Catholicism by the reduction of its formative power While the visual arts dropped out of the lives of Protestant churches they became a memory rather than a source of ennoblement or power in the Roman Catholic Church Thus in different but allied ways Protestants and Catholics lost the power of the visual Part art history part historical theology and part theological reflection this book is both an argument and a program for the recovery of the visual arts in the life of the church for reclaiming seeing as part of religious perception It offers a theological understanding of the visual and provides a basis upon which the visual arts may again be incorporated into Protestantism and reinvigorated in Roman Catholicism The first part is devoted to historical reconstruction exploring those moments in Western history in which the relation between religion and the arts was in ferment Part 2 is given to contemporary delineation and analysis of spiritual perceptions in modern American painting and sculpture of modern church art and architecture and of the changing views of contemporary theologians toward the visual arts Citing David Tracy Karl Rahner Langdon Gilkey and others as examples Dillenberger argues that contemporary theology is moving away from the modern rationalistic understanding of theological analogy to one far closer to the arts Part 3 is constructive developing a theological perspective that demands and includes the visual arts and suggesting ways in which this can be accomplished in pastoral and theological education The world of art says Professor Dillenberger is more aware of the role of religion in the arts than the world of religion is of art Thus it is time for the church to resume its historic association with the visual arts albeit in analogous rather than repristinating ways
