The Young Musician, 2020-04-19 We already know that he held two important offices in the town of Norton. He was a portly man and especially cultivated dignity of deportment. Being in easy circumstances and even rich for the resident of a village, he was naturally looked up to and credited with a worldly sagacity far beyond what he actually possessed. At any rate, he may be considered the magnate of Norton. Occasionally he visited New York and had been very much annoyed to find that his rural importance did not avail him there and that he was treated with no sort of deference by those whom he had occasion to meet. Somehow the citizens of the commercial metropolis never suspected for a single moment that he was a great man.
