Forested Tidal Wetland Communities of Shore of Maryland's Eastern Shore

Maryland. Department of Natural Resources, 2004 The purpose of this project was to classify and describe forested tidal wetlands on Maryland's Eastern Shore in an effort to develop a more complete understanding of these communities The classification generated by this study and presented in this report will be used to augment the ongoing Maryland natural community classification Harrison 2004b and the USNVC Grossman et al 1998 With this classification exemplary examples of each community type were identified and described as reference sites The information gathered in this project will be used to complement other projects studying tidal wetlands in the eastern United States Amphibian Conservation Rebecca K. Smith, William J. Sutherland, 2014-05-16 Amphibian Conservation is the fourth in the series of Synopses of Conservation Evidence linked to the online resource www.ConservationEvidence.com This synopsis is part of the Conservation Evidence project and provides a useful resource for conservationists It forms part of a series designed to promote a more evidence based approach to biodiversity conservation Others in the series include bee bird farmland and bat conservation and many others are in preparation Approximately 32% of the 7 164 amphibian species are currently threatened with extinction and at least 43% of species are declining Despite this until recently amphibians and their conservation had received little attention Although work is now being carried out to conserve many species often it is not adequately documented This book brings together and summarises the available scientific evidence and experience relevant to the practical conservation of amphibians The authors consulted an international group of amphibian experts and conservationists to produce a thorough summary of what is known or not known about the effectiveness of amphibian conservation actions across the world The book is packed with literature summaries and citations a veritable information goldmine for graduate students and researchers It also admirably provides decision makers with a well researched resource of proven interventions that can be employed to stem reverse the decline of amphibian populations John G Palis Bulletin of the Chicago Herpetological Society

Wisconsin Chapter, 1972 Wetland and Riparian Areas of the Intermountain West Mark C. McKinstry, Wayne A. Hubert, Stanley H. Anderson, 2010-01-01 Wetlands and riparian areas between the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada are incredibly diverse and valuable habitats More than 80 percent of the wildlife species in this intermountain region depend on these wetlands which account for less than 2 percent of the land area for their survival At the same time the wetlands also serve the water needs of ranchers and farmers recreationists vacation communities and cities It is no exaggeration to call water the liquid gold of the West and the burgeoning human demands on this scarce resource make it imperative to understand and properly manage the wetlands and riverine areas of the Intermountain West This book offers land managers biologists and research scientists a state of the art survey of the ecology and management practices of wetland and riparian areas in the Intermountain West Twelve articles examine such diverse issues as laws and regulations affecting these habitats the unique physiographic features of the region the importance of wetlands and riparian areas to fish wildlife and livestock the ecological function of these areas their value to humans and the methods to evaluate these habitats The authors also address the human impacts on the land from urban and suburban development mining grazing energy extraction recreation water diversions and timber harvesting and suggest ways to mitigate such impacts Illinois Nature Preserves Commission Proposed Agenda Illinois Nature Preserves Commission, 2011-09 Ecological Considerations in Wetlands Treatment of Municipal Wastewaters Paul J. complex habitats that play such vital ecological roles In Wading Right In Catherine Owen Koning and Sharon M Ashworth take us on a journey into wetlands through stories from the people who wade in the muck Traveling alongside scientists explorers and kids with waders and nets the authors uncover the inextricably entwined relationships between the water flows natural chemistry soils flora and fauna of our floodplain forests fens bogs marshes and mires Tales of mighty efforts to protect rare orchids restore salt marshes and preserve sedge meadows become portals through which we visit major wetland types and discover their secrets while also learning critical ecological lessons The United States still loses wetlands at a rate of 13 800 acres per year Such loss diminishes the water quality of our rivers and lakes depletes our capacity for flood control reduces our ability to mitigate climate change and further impoverishes our biodiversity Koning and Ashworth s stories captivate the imagination and inspire the emotional and intellectual connections we need to commit to protecting these magical and mysterious places
