What Do I Say? Linda N. Edelstein, Charles A. Waehler, 2011-05-12 The must have guide to honestly and sensitively answering your clients questions Written to help therapists view their clients questions as collaborative elements of clinical work What Do I Say explores the questions some direct others unspoken that all therapists at one time or another will encounter from clients Authors and practicing therapists Linda Edelstein and Charles Waehler take a thought provoking look at how answers to clients questions shape a therapeutic climate of expression that encourages personal discovery and growth Strategically arranged in a question and answer format for ease of use this hands on guide is conversational in tone and filled with personal examples from experienced therapists on twenty three hot button topics including religion sex money and boundaries What Do I Say tackles actual client questions such as Can you help me Chapter 1 The Early Sessions Sorry I am late Can we have extra time Chapter 9 Boundaries I don t believe in all this therapy crap What do you think about that Chapter 3 Therapeutic Process Why is change so hard Chapter 4 Expectations About Change Will you attend my graduation wedding musical performance speech business grand opening Chapter 20 Out of the Office Where are you going on vacation Chapter 10 Personal Questions I gave your name to a friend Will you see her Chapter 9 Boundaries Should I pray about my problems Chapter 12 Religion and Spirituality Are you like all those other liberals who believe gay people have equal rights Chapter 13 Prejudice The power of therapy lies in the freedom it offers clients to discuss anything and everything It s not surprising then that clients will surprise therapists with their experiences and sometimes with the questions they ask What Do I Say reveals how these questions no matter how difficult or uncomfortable can be used to support the therapeutic process rather than derail the therapist client relationship

What Do You Say to Someone in an Elevator? Angus MacIntyre, 2013-10-10 What do you say to someone in an elevator This book could have been titled

Uncomfortable Embarrassing Moments or Awkward Occasions or A Guide for the Unbelievable Shy or You Can Choose To Be Painfully Politically Correct and Shallow In All Social Situations It is not just about what to say to someone in an elevator Rather it is about all of those awkward occasions in which we find ourselves at a loss for words This is particularly difficult when we are in a time bind with only a few minutes or in some cases a few seconds to say something or do something to relieve the tension or bring humor to an otherwise awkward situation Wakes funerals lineups parking lots public transits taverns hospitals waiting rooms airports the homeless the handicapped professors clerks civil servants that are not so civil and the like all provide us with the opportunity to reach out and touch somebody in a human caring way It is my wish that by the end of this book all those who chose to read it will gain some insight into why these events are so difficult We can also ask ourselves what we can do to bring some humor to these clumsy moments so as to make them more tolerable and maybe even more enjoyable to ourselves and others We might even arrive at the day when we would not simply be ready to respond to these ungraceful moments but to actually anticipate and look forward to them I wish I have worked and studied through the USA and Canada for over forty years and most of the stories told here are from my personal experience in awkward or embarrassing situations in too many communities to mention This book is important because it deals with lost opportunities in life when we have the opportunity to reach out and touch others in situations that are often uncomfortable or awkward for most people Judging from those who have read a copy it seems that everyone can relate to those situations The book will have wide mass appeal to teenagers and seniors and all those people in between What Do You Say To Someone In An ElevatorK FAQ Why did you write the book The reason words are so important is because of the difference we can make in the lives of others with just a few well chosen words This would seem especially true in those awkward moments in life when we only have a few seconds or minutes to say or do something that can touch another human being deeply What is the focus or theme of the book Awkward occasions that make us uncomfortable are a common almost daily occurrence They happen in line ups at the supermarket in hospital waiting rooms at the bank in elevators at airports lounge or waiting areas in airplanes and in dozens of other situations Why are they so awkward and is there anything we can do to prepare for these occasions to make them more tolerable What do you say to someone in an elevator tackles this common dilemma that every human being has faced many times in their life Why is it important for people to read this book People who read this book will be encouraged to think outside the box about their own behaviour and how they can influence others in difficult or awkward situations They will also be encouraged to prepare for these situations in order to take better advantage of them What makes this book different from others on humour This book does not attempt to create situations in order to be funny It simply takes advantage of those situations that occur several times every day when if we were to think about it we could laugh at ourselves or others in a kind and gentle way Words that describe the book X Humorous X Dealing with awkward moments or occasions X Preparing for uncomfortable moments X How to handle embarrassing moments X A guide for shy people Was
