

EVIDENCE-BASED TEACHING PRACTICES

HIGH-IMPACT

Evidence-Based Teaching Practices

1. High Learning by Learning from Examples

The best way to learn a new skill or concept is to watch someone else do it. This is why teachers should use a variety of examples to illustrate concepts.

2. Practice with Feedback

Students learn best when they receive feedback on their work. This helps them understand what they are doing well on and what they need to improve.

3. Spacing Practice in Time

Students learn better when they practice a skill over time, rather than all at once. This helps them retain the information longer.

4. Self-Reflection and Student Feedback

Students should be encouraged to reflect on their own learning and provide feedback to their peers. This helps them take ownership of their learning.

5. Collaborative Learning and Peer Review

Students learn best when they work together and help each other. This helps them understand concepts better and develop critical thinking skills.

6. Use Feedback Effectively

Teachers should provide feedback that is specific and helpful. This helps students understand what they are doing well on and what they need to improve.

7. Focus on Understanding

Teachers should focus on helping students understand concepts, rather than just memorizing facts. This helps them apply their knowledge in new situations.

8. Use Assessment as a High-Impact Tool

Teachers should use assessment to measure student learning and provide feedback. This helps them understand what students are learning and what they need to improve.

9. Use Assessment of Learning

Teachers should use assessment to measure student learning and provide feedback. This helps them understand what students are learning and what they need to improve.
