Western Canadas Railways:

The Canadian Pacific Railway and the Development of Western Canada, 1896-1914 John Andrew Eagle, 1989 A large federal cash subsidy aided CPR construction of the Crows Nest Pass Railway from Lethbridge Alberta to Nelson British Columbia The line completed in late 1898 was designed to encourage mining and smelting in the Kootenays and to link this region with Central Canada From 1899 to 1914 the Great Northern Railroad in the United States also built lines into southern British Columbia to tap this valuable mining traffic The CPR completed a line to Vancouver in 1915 by which time it dominated the regional traffic However it still faced competition for this traffic from the Great Northern which had allied itself with the Canadian Northern Railway John Eagle examines the lengthy and bitter conflict which resulted between the two railways Eagle provides the first scholarly analysis of the Crows Nest Pass Agreement of 1897 Under this historic agreement the CPR stimulated prairie agriculture by lowering its freight rates on grain matching both the lower rates of the Canadian Northern on grain and the rates on wheat established under the Manitoba Agreement of 1901 The development of southern British Columbia also opened a new market for prairie grain and cattle The Canadian Pacific Railway and the Development of Western Canada challenges the prevailing view that CPR land policies were designed primarily to promote settlement in order to generate traffic for the railway Eagle argues that the railway adopted policies which maximized profits from its agricultural lands so that proceeds from prairie land sales became an important source of revenue for the company

Railways of Western Canada Jonathan Whelan, 2003-04-01 Two new books part of Altitude s best selling History in Photographs series detail the early development of Canada s railroad history along the route of the Canadian Pacific Railway Responsible for linking the east with the west and for helping to establish Canada s first national park the CPR also created one of the worlds most fabulous transportation and hotel chains Thirty-two Scenic Views of Western Canada Along the Lines of the Canadian National Railways, the Largest Railway System in America Canadian National Railways, 1927 Western Canada Lumberman , 1927 The Grand Trunk Western Railroad Patrick C. Dorin, 1977

Count d'Esterhazy and the Esterhaz-Kaposvar Hungarian Colony in Western Canada Joseph G. Nagy, 2024-09-03 Throughout the late 1800s waves of immigrants came over from Europe to North America their arrival serving a dual purpose On the one hand the immigrants were seeking a better life for themselves and their families On the other hand the Canadian federal provincial and territorial governments were seeking to populate their territory in a bid to maintain sovereignty over the land and to develop it for agriculture Among these immigrants were the Hungarian and Western Slavic settlers who founded the Esterhaz Colony which later became known as the Kaposvar and Kolin districts in southeastern Saskatchewan A key figure in the founding of this colony was the enigmatic Count Paul O d Esterhazy a k a Janos Baptiste Packh As an immigration agent for the Canadian and American governments he worked tirelessly not only to promote immigration to the Kaposvar and Kolin districts but also to improve the lives of the immigrants who settled there Although d

Esterhazy was not without his detractors this book takes pains to emphasize the sincerity of his vision of a Little Hungary on the Canadian Prairies and the many challenges that he and other proponents of the colony faced as they sought to see that vision fulfilled Meticulously researched and documented this book offers a treasure trove of insight into not only the Esterhazy colony and surrounding area but also the myriad and often conflicting forces involved in the founding of Canada as a nation
